

The Principal Assessor felt Wilmington's tax rate is comparable to that of neighboring towns. Billerica, for instance, has set its residential rate at $9.93 and its C.I.P. rate at $19.63. Tewksbury has set its residential rate at $10.13 and its C.I.P. rate at $15.79. Reading and North Reading have one overall rate, said Krzeminski.

Winter returned to Wilmington on Sunday, leaving a six-inch blanket of snow. One of the more interesting sights was the greenhouse at Rocco's Restaurant, which grew its own ice sculpture.

Brian Connolly, 18, of 14 Beeching Ave., Wilmington was convicted of assault with intent to rape, indecent assault, and armed burglary. He was sentenced to a five-to-seven year term in Cedar Junction Prison in Walpole on the first charge, and a concurrent term

Connolly was ordered to maintain psychological testing throughout his prison term. He was further ordered to have no contact with the victim.

Cain was treated for a broken nose, two black eyes, bruises and abrasions at the Lahey Clinic the night of the fight. He lost a considerable amount of blood in the fight. He is slated to have reconstructive surgery next month to straighten his nose. Additionally, he has lost a tooth and may lose more, as a result of nerve damage to the teeth.

Budget discussions got underway last Wednesday at the Roman House. During the brief meeting School Supt. William Fay said school administrators had been meeting with the town manager to get an overview of the town's financial situation and see how it would impact the school system. Fay explained that principals and department heads were told to submit level funded budgets to him

According to Fay, if the committee accepts the town manager's projections and maintains present staff positions with negotiated pay increases, the school budget would be $1.6 million in the hole. Even if he cut 24 teachers and administrators and 17 support personnel, said Fay, that would only save $1.4 million. To make up the deficit, Fay said he would be forced to make cuts "across the board," including a "serious crimp" in high school programs and higher class sizes in the elementary grades. The superintendent added 80 percent of the school budget centers around salaries and the rest is in non-salary

In his financial report, Stapczynski projected that school revenues would decrease by $766,170 in FY 1991 while school fixed costs would increase by $184,959.

Democrats to caucus Feb. 3

Registered Democrats in Wilmington will be holding a caucus Saturday, February 3, 1990 at 2 p.m. to elect delegates to the 1990 Massachusetts Democratic Convention.

Wilmington will be electing 11 delegates and four alternates, equally divided between men and women, to send to the Convention. The apportioned number of delegates has been allocated on the basis of a formula giving equal weight to the Democratic Party registration and the average vote for Democratic candidates in the last general elections for Governor and President for which figures were available at the time delegate tabulations were prepared.

Elaine M. Hachey will call the caucus at the 4th of July Building. The caucus is open to all registered Democrats, persons ineligible to register and media representatives. The only persons eligible to participate in any portion of the caucus are those who are registered Democrats in the ward or town as of December 29, 1989. There will be no absentee or proxy voting.

Candidates for delegate and alternate must also be present, voting and give his or her written consent to be nominated and that nomination must be seconded by two persons present at the local caucus.

All ballots will be written and secret. Those candidates receiving the greatest number of votes on the first ballot will be elected.

Each candidate will be allowed to make a two minute speech and to distribute on his/her behalf one sheet of paper listing qualifications and ideas.

State making is allowed, but no special preference shall be given to slates. There is no quorum requirement for the caucus.

There will be no admission or expense charge at the caucus, although donations may be solicited.

Discrimination on the basis of race, sex, age, color, creed, national origin, religion, ethnic identity, philosophical persuasion or economic status in the conduct of the caucus is strictly prohibited.

Challenges to the delegate selection process can be filed in writing with the Compliance Review Commission in care of The Massachusetts Democratic Party, 45 Bromfield St., Boston, MA 02108 no later than February 5, 1990.

New members

The Wilmington Chamber of Commerce welcomed new members during a reception last Wednesday evening at Rocco's Restaurant. They included Robert Ferry of Pro Services, Kevin Harrington of Bill & Bob's Roast Beef, Paul Hudson of Sign Stop and Frank Luongo of Apollo Design. They were presented membership plaques by Al Materas (center), chamber president.

Tewksbury may soon have boxing program

If all goes well, Tewksbury may someday have a youth boxing club, as a member of the Silver Mittens circuit.

Silver Mittens is a youth version of the Golden Gloves organization.

Gerry Colton, a Tewksbury firefighter, said he is trying to secure a building at the state hospital for the boxing group, to use as a gym. He said he has asked state Rep. James Miceli to help gain control of the former storage barn, which Colton said is already heated and plumbed.

About $10,000 worth of boxing equipment has been offered, Colton said, including two rings, punching bags, and even mouthpieces.

However, the building itself will need work before being opened as a boxing gym, Colton said, such as building showers and some interior work.

Colton said a few police officers have expressed an interest in the youth boxing program as well, and that other towns will be invited to join the group.

Tewksbury police Officer Robert Westaway said the state police hold an Olympic-style athletics competition, which includes boxing. If the boxing gym gets started, Westaway said, Tewksbury and Wilmington police may someday provide their own entries into the boxing event.

Colton said that the state hospital building is so large that other uses could be granted, such as aerobics or dance classes. He added that a number of professional boxers are willing to attend the ribbon-cutting ceremonies.

However, the first task of the new boxing program will be securing their own gym. If the state hospital releases the building, there may soon be a youth boxing program in Tewksbury.

Little discussion on subdivision plan

There was little discussion on a 59-lot definitive subdivision plan known as Andover Heights at a hearing of the Wilmington Planning Board Tuesday night. The subdivision is being developed on Andover Street by landowner Al Fiorenza.

Engineer Erich Nitzsche told planners lots on the 40-acre parcel range from 20,000 to 60,000 square feet. He said while the soil is generally acceptable for septic systems, lots 13 and 14 may not be buildable because of a former gravel pit located nearby. The site is considered "very hilly" with a lot of ledge.

The engineer said he will go to the Conservation Commission because of a vernal pond and some isolated land subject to flooding on the property. A water impact study was done in November and submitted to the water department, but the applicant has yet to receive a response, Nitzsche said.

Board Chairman Dave Clark explained that the fire chief had had some concerns about response time in case of a fire. Clark said he is requiring that fire hydrants be moved closer together. Nitzsche said he would comply with the request.

Two Andover Street residents noted that there was quite a bit of runoff in the vicinity. Fiorenza said retention areas will deal with that problem. The applicant is requesting only one waiver on the grade of the looped roadway within the project.

The hearing was continued to March 20 until input is received from the Conservation Commission and the town engineer.

Board issues cease and desist order to J's Deli

A difference of opinion over the sale of non-deli type food at J's Food and Deli on Middlesex Avenue led the Wilmington Board of Health to issue a recent cease and desist order to owners Joseph and James Fiorenza.

In a letter dated January 11, Health Director Greg Erickson told the Fiorenzas that the sale of such foods as pizza, breakfast sandwiches, and breakfasts to go is in violation of their existing food license and must stop. The items are considered food service, Erickson said, which can only be sold in a restaurant. The health director said the continued sale of such items would result in a $50 a day fine for each violation and possible loss of their food permit.

Though he refused to discuss the case in-depth, Erickson told this paper the point is really "moot" since the on-site septic system is too small to allow an expansion of operation. The Fiorenzas, he said, were informed of this fact when the system was recently repaired.

J's Deli is grandfathered in as a retail establishment and located in an industrial zone. A restaurant is only allowed in a high density business zone. According to Erickson, "a retail food store is allowed to have a deli and that deli is allowed to sell deli sandwiches and other deli items so long as this is an accessory to the main use."

James Fiorenza argued that the whole issue is a zoning problem. In a letter to Building Inspector James Russo, who serves as the zoning enforcement officer of the town, Fiorenza claimed the matter is outside of the health board's jurisdiction. He said the only distinction between food service establishments appears in the zoning bylaws and that distinction is not based on type of food sold but on method of service.

"J's Food and Deli should be allowed to sell any food of its choosing for off premises consumption," claimed Fiorenza, adding that there are no tables or counter space on the premises. The Fiorenzas are still awaiting a decision from Russo on the food uses and proper zone.

The deli owners petitioned the board of health for a formal hearing on January 18 to review the cease and desist order. The petition was based on the fact that Erickson lacks jurisdiction over the type of food sold and the fact that the cease and desist order is "an arbitrary exercise of assumed authority."

At a meeting of their board Monday, health board members granted the Fiorenzas an extension for their public hearing to February 5. Until that time, said Erickson, the order will continue to be in effect.

Several neighbors turned up at the meeting but health officials refused to discuss the case until the hearing.

Bylaw study committee to discuss town land sale

The Wilmington Bylaw Study Committee will begin meeting in a week or two to come up with a mechanism to dispose of some of the town's smaller parcels of land. At Monday's meeting with selectmen, Bruce MacDonald, Pat Ward, and Bernard Nally sought direction from the board before moving ahead.

Ward said one of the first things her committee should do is establish a vehicle to sell property to abutters to help make their lots conform. She suggested extending the moratorium on land sales on a limited basis once its up in April. She said the town should lift it just to give the dozen or so abutters who have made written requests to the town a chance to purchase the smaller lots.

While selectmen seemed united against selling large or buildable lots, they did note the sale of small parcels would bring in some needed revenues to the town. Only Michael McCoy was against the sale of any town-owned land, saying he would only approve if the town controls the deed as is done with affordable housing. Officials noted land could be sold through the bid process, a lottery, an auction, town meeting, or in some other way. The timeframe for coming up with a vehicle or bylaw was left up to the committee.

Nally praised former planning intern Don Nadeau for the "impressive" collection of information garnered as he made the study. He said the study opened up quite a few possible uses for the land.

Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski said selectmen need some guidance on what to do with local developers seeking land. To date, the town is in receipt of letters from local builders Jay Tighe and Mark Nelson asking for certain parcels.

Once a mechanism is devised, said former committee chairman Bruce MacDonald, the committee will submit it for consideration to selectmen and Town Counsel Alan Altman.

Gas station owner questions $7,000 check

John Forrest, owner of Forrest Service Center on Lowell Street, this week questioned the wisdom of the state in issuing him a check for $7,000 for a three-year easement on the service station property. The easement would allow the state to work in the area to improve road conditions and the I-93/129 interchange by West Street.

Forrest told Wilmington selectmen Monday night he thought with the input from the town and the legislative delegation against the project, the work wouldn't be done. "If this road is dead, why are they paying me?" Forrest wanted to know. He also noted that after the three years are up, he would be getting another check from the state, despite the well-publicized financial crisis at the state level.

Forrest asked if the state has so much money, "why aren't they giving it to our cities and towns?" He told the board they should have Wilmington's legislators look into the matter to see if the state has the necessary money and if the project is still alive.

Board firm on $15,000 mental health cut

In a brief discussion Monday night, Wilmington Health Board members stood firm in their decision to cut $15,000 from the mental health account.

Dr. James Ficociello, chairman, pointed out that for the first time, Wilmington Family Counseling Service made a profit amounting to $10,000. He said because of the board's vested interest in the agency, they had hoped all along the counseling service would become more self-supporting. He added that the agency also receives funds through the United Way.

"They've done a very good job," Ficociello told this paper. He added that the reduction made by his board is not an attempt to "penalize" the agency but rather one of several "hurlful" cuts that had to be made.

Ficociello pointed out that the 20 percent of the agency's budget that goes to administrative contracts seems a little high.

SHOULD YOU REFINANCE?

When interest rates go down, home refinancings go up. People want to lock in a lower rate on their home mortgages.

Mortgage rates usually decline in winter, when demand is low, and rates near 10 percent can be found for fixed-rate loans. A number of financial advisors call that an optimum rate over the near term, especially if your current interest rate is more than two or three percentage points higher.

But refinancing involves extra costs, like points on the new loan, lawyer's fees, a new appraisal, perhaps, and other fees. Lower interest payments will mean lower tax deductions, too; this may serve to limit the savings per month. Each homeowner will have to measure the cost advantages of refinancing against tax considerations and the number of years the family expects to remain in the house.

Many refinancers take the opportunity to draw on built-up equity for a larger loan, which may have tax-deductible interest, to pay off some of their debts.

Botanist's findings support administrator

by Arlene Surprenant
Wilmington Conservation Administrator Eileen Flaherty has been vindicated in a recent run-in with local developer Mark Nelson.

Nelson had accused Flaherty of being "incompetent" when she claimed the developer was impacting wetlands and a buffer zone on a lot he owns on Dorchester Street. Both the administrator and the Conservation Commission had urged Nelson to file a Notice of Intent with the board before continuing grading and other work. At the behest of his engineer, Mike Rosati, Nelson agreed to have a botanist look at the site to test the board's claim.

At last Wednesday's meeting, commissioners learned that botanist Michael Marcus of New England Environmental agreed Nelson had indeed been working in a buffer zone and altered some wetlands. Though the board has had no communication with Nelson, Rosati reviewed a topographical plan with members showing the alterations and wetland boundary. Board members reiterated that Nelson had to file a Notice of Intent and said they would take up the issue at their next meeting on February 7.

Flaherty asked that the developer come up with soil samples and be prepared to show the approximate edge of the original wetlands. Flaherty told the Town Crier she feels vindicated by the botanist's findings.

Commissioner Dennis Poltrino said this week he took strong exception to Nelson's attempt to impugn the administrator's education and background and he maintained Flaherty should never have been challenged on what was "severely altered" wetlands.

"The facts are now coming to light that there is a wetland there. Despite what he feels about our competence, the facts are coming out. His biologist confirms that," Poltrino said.

Stapczynski applies for Andover town manager

by Arlene Surprenant
Wilmington Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski is one of 102 applicants under consideration for the position of Andover Town Manager.

In reply to a question Monday night by Selectman Michael McCoy, Stapczynski admitted he applied for the opening in early December.

"I was asked to submit my name and I did," said Stapczynski, who added he viewed the prospective move as a career opportunity.

When McCoy appeared to question the town manager's motives, Stapczynski assured selectmen "my loyalties are to the town of Wilmington."

According to Don Staruk, a reporter with the Andover Townsman, Andover Town Manager Kenneth Mahoney will be stepping down February 3. Staruk said Andover selectmen are in the process of each choosing the five or six candidates they consider the best qualified so that the finalist pool will contain about 30 applicants, at least one of which would be a woman. Once the finalists are chosen, the names will be released to the public, Staruk said. The current town manager in Andover receives a salary of $75,000.

Lions honor Si Cutter

The Lions' Club International Foundation (LCIF) recently honored Attorney Simon Cutter on being named a Melvin Jones Fellow.

The Melvin Jones Fellowship is the highest honor conferred by the Foundation. In receiving the Melvin Jones Fellowship, Attorney Cutter joins the ranks of some of the most prominent Lions of the world.

The Melvin Jones Fellowship requires more than a financial commitment to LCIF. A Melvin Jones Fellow recognizes his deep commitment to the ideals of Lionism. Through his actions, Attorney Cutter has shown deep concern for the welfare of his fellow man, and they convey the deepest respect to him.

As a Melvin Jones Fellow, he is recognized as a leader among Lions. The foundation depends upon a Fellow to promote its important work and to help expand its work in services. Through Attorney Cutter's assistance, LCIF will enable to take on greater humanitarian challenges than ever before.

As an example of Lions' services and leadership they said Attorney Cutter has set an example for all Lions and that they are profoundly grateful for all his leadership and services.

Attorney Simon Cutter and his wife, Edith, live at 43 Church St., Wilmington. Attorney Cutter has been prominent in many town and state matters having been a past town moderator and a former assistant district attorney in Middlesex County.

Tewksbury Police Explorer Post 352 is now a reality

by Bill Conlon
Tewksbury Explorer Post 352, a newly created organization under the supervision of the Tewksbury police department, is now a reality.

The Explorers are a division of Boy Scouts of America, for those ages 14 to 21.

On Tuesday night, Officer Bob Westaway of the Tewksbury police met with six prospective "charter" members of the new Explorer post for the first time. He said that more members can be expected as the post becomes more established, and that a survey of Tewksbury high showed that 70 to 80 students are interested in law enforcement as a career, and may be interested in the Explorer post.

Also meeting with the new post was Captain Moe Steele of the Billerica Police Department, who is an advisor to a similar Explorer post in that town.

Steele said his Explorers conduct traffic control for parades and help in searches for missing individuals, among other operations. He said a "police" Explorer will receive first aid training, and that Explorers are usually called upon to help keep the peace at local Boy Scout Jamborees.

Steele added that local Explorer posts are usually called upon to aid with traffic control at Hanscom Air Force Base, when the Thunderbirds aerial demonstration team comes to the base for their annual show.

Westaway promised the new post that a weapons demonstration will be held on February 6, to include members of the Special Operations Team.

The designation number for the new Explorer post was selected by Westaway, as it is also the number of the patrolmen's union local.

District executive Chris LeBlanc said the post number may be kept, provided there is no other Explorer Post 352 in the Lowell Council of BSA.

Opinion.....

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

The state budget crisis came home to roost in Wilmington Monday night as the town manager made his fiscal year 1991 budget presentation. An overall decrease from the present budget of 1.4 percent, the FY 91 financial package for Wilmington is a dismal picture of local government having to pay the final price for the reckless budgetary policies on Beacon Hill.

This is a new brand of trickle-down economics. The state government teeters and totters on the brink of disaster until finally the ramifications are felt by communities like Wilmington in the form of local aid cuts which will, without the remedy of a Proposition 2 1/2 override, hit all of us hard on the home front.

Town Manager "Buzz" Stapczynski recommends that town meeting voters approve numerous cuts throughout town departments, including layoffs and demotions of officers in the public safety areas. "This is not a budget of choice," said Stapczynski, who during his nine year tenure as manager has overseen dramatic increases in services provided to local residents.

Stapczynski reflected on his budget recommendations as a painful process for him personally. "I see these people when I go jogging or do my grocery shopping," said the manager in a somber tone. "These are my friends and neighbors; I take pride in them, and this process is very difficult."

The process at hand should be painful for all of us. Local government, which provides the most basic public services which people require for day-to-day living - police and fire protection, roadways, and education for our kids - is being scaled back. This community, depending on the final judgment of town meeting, may well have to cut a great deal of bone while the governor is accused of still being surrounded by fat in his own budget.

"The state budget crisis was handed to cities and towns this week," said Sheila Cheimitz, executive director of the Massachusetts Municipal Association (MMA). "We have balanced our budgets but the state never did." Cheimitz expressed the opinion of her membership that the state has continued to fail at attempts to balance its own budget while cities and towns have already made the cuts necessary to balance their books. Now, in anticipation of further local aid reductions for FY 91, the MMA believes there's nothing left for local government to cut except essential personnel. "What you're looking at now is cutting employees who provide basic services," said Cheimitz.

Though the town manager's recommended budget cuts will face the scrutiny of the finance committee prior to annual town meeting, Fincom Chairman Neil Waisnor believes the package accurately depicts the present-fiscal crisis. "I think it's a good first step because it conveys the problem. Now the voters will decide the priorities," said Waisnor.

Deciding priorities is the challenge which faces both voters and their elected representatives. For the officials, the fiscal crisis will put consciences at direct odds with political expediency. Public policy makers will be hard pressed to sit by silently as the fallout from the state budget crisis reaches Wilmington. However, they may be even harder pressed to back a Proposition 2 1/2 override before an electorate known for its fiscal conservatism -- unless those officials become very courageous.

At the same time, town meeting voters, who ultimately control the local purse strings, could face the choice of a general override which would cost each home owner another $70 in property taxes next year; or instead, an altered local government where their friends and neighbors are laid off from jobs which entail the protection of life and property, as well as the education of our kids.

Tough choices are ahead for everyone, which calls for strong leadership, especially from the board of selectmen. Aside from the predictable bickering about where else we may cut in the budget, they should let their feelings on an override be known soon. If they're willing to live with the cuts so be it. But, if they can take a stand for an override vote they'll need to organize their efforts now to justify the added expense to voters as the state budget "challenge" becomes our local crisis.

One selectman in particular is calling on voters to consider other budgetary cuts which would be less painful. "I feel that the police and fire are two areas which should not be cut," said Chester Bruce. Bruce was critical of the town manager's budget recommendations Monday evening, suggesting that Stapczynski "overlooked many administrative reductions" which could be made before the town eliminates essential personnel. "I'd much rather see non-essential personnel cut first." I would prefer positions like the assistant town manager, the recreation director, and personnel in the conservation department and at the planning board cut before the men and women who fight fires and protect our lives and property," said Bruce.

If there are still any dichards out there with Dukakis - Bentsen bumper stickers, the time has come for ye to repent. This is a problem created and remaining to be solved at a higher level.

MMA Executive Director Cheimitz may have put it all in perspective with the following. "What I'd like to know is what jobs the governor is protecting at the state level that are more important than your firefighters responding to a fire at two in the morning?"

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

Foster Balser died the other day. They tell me he was brushing snow away from the walk or maybe the steps in his yard. I feel a heavy sense of loss that this poignant and at the same time curious.

Mr. Balser you see was a well loved, well respected member of the Wilmington High School faculty. In his own way using his ageless "Yankee" sounding expressions, he engaged our young, mostly boys in conversation(s).

He told them to value themselves, to eat properly, to study, to know that they were loved, in fact had to be even if they didn't realize or believe they were. He told them they were the future.

His teaching population was often youngsters who in other schools might be selling drugs, lighting fires, extorting money from those who were weaker. His lads listened. They never laughed and they never destroyed property within the purview of the old man's responsibility.

He lost his job due to a lack of money and only a week ago came back as a volunteer. He told me he needed kids and they, he believed, needed him. My last conversation with the man dealt with him advising me to lock every door of the high school except the front one, from the outside so that we would never have to confront an intruder with a weapon as had happened in California. I responded that I hope God would give me courage enough to deal with that frightening circumstance if it happened.

I think Foster had courage because he seemed in his work with us and in the time I knew him to be able to live as all of us want to but usually never can for one reason or another.

Wilmington High School thinks Mr. Balser was a great human being. He won our love and tremendous respect by serving as patron of our restrooms.

Perhaps the meek really do inherit the earth.

Sincerely,
Paul T. Fleming
Principal

Dear Larz:

Many thanks to Jim Miceli and Dick Wilson for persuading the MBTA to install a weather shelter at the old North Wilmington Depot.

Dear Larz:

During this age of rampant social diseases there are those at Wilmington High School who are indulging in the risky behavior of live telephone sex. Such practices are dangerous and those involved ought to be warned of the consequences. It's time to educate the public about safe phone sex.

Diseases may be communicated through telephone lines. Observe: In Syracuse, New York a computer hack is on trial for creating a national computer epidemic with a program known as a "virus." At the same time someone is listening to "Womens Secret Fantasies" at the high school, a "virus" may be infecting all the software there and subsequently be transferring it to the rest of the school system. Be smart. Protect yourself and the computer you love.

Another piece of advice comes from Dr. C. Everett, the surgeon general who recommends not having live phone sex with more than one partner in an entire lifetime. Even better advice came from former President Ronald Reagan who endorsed abstinence; and everyone knows wisdom comes with age and who better to ask the nation to restrict its favorite pastime than an 80 year old man.

The idea of live phone sex may have developed with syndicated radio talk show host, Dr. Ruth Westheimer who promotes such licentious behavior. Her seductive voice has made many men weak in the knees.

I'm convinced that the individual or party who made the live phone sex calls at the high school haven't really engaged in any deviant behavior. It would be different if they were calling other 900 numbers to talk with Michael Jackson, Freddy Kruger, or New Kids on the Block. Now that's perverse.

Dear Larz:

As chairman of the Wilmington Council on Aging I was infuriated reading your column in the paper listing the important accomplishments made in the town during the 80's. Why was the Buzzell Senior Center not included on the page with the others?

Renovating the Buzzell School was a tremendous undertaking. Not by the town or its elected officials we voted for at that time to serve the needs of all residents. No, it was renovated by the seniors themselves with no help from the town officials. It was obvious the needs of the seniors were of no concern to those they elected into office and your paper that gave the seniors very little coverage (about as much as we get today).

I would like to explain to you why the seniors feel renovating the Buzzell School in to a senior citizen center for the town was a tremendous accomplishment.

With the arrival of the 80's the elderly all over the country began to increase at a rapid rate. The members of the Council on Aging in those years were very much aware of it. They began to worry how they would be able to serve all the elders' needs and where they could then do it. Mr. Demoulas had been very generous to the town for many years donating one of his stores where the elderly could go for help and companionship. But very year it became more and more difficult to serve their needs in one large room.

They knew a larger and more private building had to be found. In the year 1983 at the request of the seniors the Council set out to find a building. At that time they thought they would get some support and help from those in the town who should have given it. The elders pay a very large amount of taxes and ask very little back. Support and help they did not receive, rather they received obstacle after obstacle from the town, but that did not stop the seniors. They set their goals on the Buzzell School and got it. Once more they were told, now that they had the school they would have to renovate it themselves. We come from a generation of people who learned from an early age that if you wanted anything badly enough you had to work hard for it.

The elderly pulled together, we begged, worked night and day giving our time, money and talents to raise enough money for material needed for the renovation. Being told the town did not have employees to help us, we turned to the only politician who offered his help - Representative Jim Miceli. To him the Wilmington senior citizens will be forever grateful. Through Representative Miceli we received carpenters, plumbers and painters. These men spent many weekends donating their working skills for us and the Town of Wilmington of which we are a part. They gave precious time that could have been spent with their families. When we asked for coverage from the newspaper, we may have had a picture, other weekends - nothing.

We were not as important as the 4th of July building or the other projects being supported by the elected officials of Wilmington. Why we were not, we never will know.

But Larz we did reach our goal in the 80's completing it in 1986. The building was given back to the town not as a boarded up, deteriorated eyesore but beautiful, active senior citizen center for generations to come. With the renovation costing the town a pittance of $50,000. What hurts me most is how the senior citizens and the members of the Council on Aging who worked so hard on this project, living today felt not seeing it mentioned as one of the top accomplishments of the 80's listed on the page with the others. What an insult to them for a job well done.

Grace Kirkland, Chairman
Wilmington Council on Aging

Editor's reply: If you still have the End of the Eighties section, you might refer to the article on Wilmington's best accomplishments: "The Buzzell Senior Center opened in 1986 amid praise for those who contributed to the effort to convert the old school to a place of pride." This can be found on page nine.

Thank you, though, for providing an in-depth review of the effort that truly is one of Wilmington's greatest success stories.

letter to the editor

Dear Larz:

The selectmen's subcommittee appointed by Chairman Charles Coldwell to look into recent allegations that the Z.B.A. is granting subdivision variances in violation of state law (chap. 40A) and other administrative and procedural deficiencies met last Wednesday with the Z.B.A. The members were given the chance to explain their reasons for granting such large number of variances to subdivide lots.

One would hope that is the course of 100 plus cases and three hours of testimony we would have learned something about the proper application of state and town zoning laws. However not one reason stated by the Z.B.A. would be upheld in court.

The Z.B.A. showed it violates most of the requirements of Chap. 40A; and when they do comply it's only to meet the minimum standard required under the law. They have stretched their privilege of "interpretation" to its outer limits. Past what is legally acceptable in the courts and beyond what the people of Tewksbury have voted on (i.e. one acre zoning). They have violated a sacred trust of all office holders: to abide by the law.

In spite of such overwhelming evidence I have learned that it is unlikely the subcommittee will recommend removal of the current members of the Z.B.A.

Every one of us needs to ask a resounding why? Hundreds of you have attended the public hearings, and hundreds more have signed a petition asking for a new Z.B.A. We simply want a board that upholds the law. We as taxpayers shouldn't have to take the boards illegal decisions to court to assure our rights are upheld, that's the job of the Board of Appeals; and the selectmen who have the power to appoint and remove them. Is our request unreasonable? Is it too much to expect based on the facts? I ask each and every one of you to call all selectmen and ask them to vote for a new Z.B.A.

People all over Eastern Europe are fighting for freedom and voicing their concerns about an oppressive government that violates their rights and ignores their views. Here we have the freedom, let's not forget the fight. Call our town fathers and tell them to represent your views. Don't let the members of the Z.B.A. walk away with our town! Here are their names and numbers:

Mr. Coldwell, 851-7992; Mr. Carcioffi, 851-3223; Mr. Hurton, 851-2094; Mr. Coppola, 851-3621; Mr. Kelley, 851-3473.

Sincerely,

Emergency plans ready

Residents of Wilmington may take assurance that the town has developed emergency plans to cope with industrial or other accidents. Health Director Gregory Erickson spoke of the plans before an audience of about 50 persons at a Chamber of Commerce breakfast, in the Wilmington K of C Tuesday morning.

Thirty-four residents, companies, town officials and others make up the Local Emergency Planning Committee (LEPC). Additionally, 17 industrial firms are members of the Wilmington Industrial Awareness & Response Group (WIARG).

The Chamber of Commerce several years ago brought the need for the two groups to the member firms of Wilmington. Also participating in the LEPC are the fire department and the Wilmington Board of Health, as well as the town manager and other town officials.

Every company in Wilmington has been questioned as to any possibility of chemicals or other dangerous materials in their properties. All the information has been catalogued, in a large loose-leaf volume, one copy of which is always with Greg Erickson, and another in the fire department truck. If there is an emergency of any kind, both the health director and the fire department have constant access to pertinent information.

Erickson spoke on the CAMEO (Computer Aided Management of Emergency Operations) system which is already in operation. Wilmington is one of the first towns in Massachusetts to have this latest in a technical emergency response data management system.

Erickson hopes to get a summer student to help work on the program.

It is a working system, to remove threats to public health and safety, from any accident which may release, to the environment or otherwise, hazardous materials in Wilmington.

Respectfully,
Donald J. Price
and Ann Handley

letters to the editor

Dear Mr. Caldwell:

We attended last Wednesday's meeting by the Board of Selectmen's subcommittee that is charged with investigating the conduct and recent decisions of the town's Zoning Board of Appeals. We have also been present at the two meetings the subcommittee held earlier.

We were very impressed by both the impartiality with which the meetings were conducted, and by the subcommittee's diligent and circumspect approach to investigating the ZBA.

It was evident at last Wednesday's meeting that the ZBA has little knowledge of the state law governing the approval of variances, particularly for the subdivision of houselots. It was also evident that the board violated at least one procedural rule - that it keep detailed minutes of its meetings and decisions.

But something far worse than sheer ignorance of the law was also apparent. It was clear that the ZBA's decisions were made arbitrarily - influenced, for example, by whether an applicant worked for the town or whether an applicant wanted or "needed" cash from the partial sale of his or her land. In fact, none of the reasons cited by the ZBA were legitimate under state law.

We believe the unevenness with which the ZBA has applied its power is cause enough for the current members' removal. Ignorance, of course, can be remedied. But no number of training courses in the legitimate application of the law can teach one to apply that law to all applicants fairly, unconditionally, and without capitulation.

The final decision of whether to replace the current ZBA members with a panel less swayed by the personal tragedies and professional connections of individual applicants lies with the Board of Selectmen. Whatever the board's ultimate decision, we urge that it be swift and decisive. We believe our sentiments reflect those of many of the town's residents.

Dear Larz:

The tax increase debate spurs me to write to address a critical issue that has become too easy to relegate to "budget buster" status: the Medicaid program.

Nobody wants increased taxes in Massachusetts; I have been watching the Beacon Hill debate. I see the need for program cuts to eliminate wasteful spending, but the medical assistance (Medicaid) program is a target, and I cannot agree with the rationale that there are parts of this program that can bear such cuts.

As a nursing home administrator, every day I see clients of the Medicaid program. Many are war veterans, most are grandparents, all are in frail health; some have families who visit, some do not, but all found themselves having to resort to the Medicaid program to cover nursing home care when all other potential funding sources were depleted. Because of the high cost of health care, these people do not have resources to fall back upon.

If Medicaid could be legitimately identified as a "budget buster" as some legislators have conveniently termed it, I would not be writing this letter.

In reality, however, the Medicaid budget must be preserved because, like it or not, it forms the financial underpinning and superstructure for nursing home care in Massachusetts.

Medicaid's undeniably sustaining role in the payment of nursing home care is certainly a problem. But the problem will not be solved by slashing the Medicaid budget. The problem can be addressed by examining Medicaid eligibility requirements.

Our culture has notoriously ignored the elderly. As the nation's older population continues to expand rapidly, nursing home care will continue to be one of the critical fiscal issues of the 90's and well beyond. We can choose to plan for it now, or we can encourage a philosophy of poor crisis management such as the one proposed by many on Beacon Hill.

Sincerely,
Karol Vitale,
Executive Director
Blair House of Tewksbury

Tewksbury schools

TMHS students take college physics course

Three students, Mari Fukuda, Steve Brann, and Karen Thompson are taking a physics course with their teacher Mr. John Clarke. The four are taking a course entitled Waves, Particles and the Structure of Matter, this is the regular Harvard-Radcliff freshman physics course.

The students will join students from 24 other high schools to take part in this program. The tuition is being paid for by the Lowell Institute in an effort to expose the students to the sciences and increase interest in physics.

The course runs Thursdays from 3:30 to 7:30 p.m. from the beginning of February to the middle of May. The students will receive four Harvard credits which can be transferred to the school they attend.

Dr. Heller attends optometry meeting

Dr. Frederick T. Heller of Wilmington was recently inducted as a Fellow of the American Academy of Optometry. This action took place at the Academy's annual meeting in New Orleans with an all-time record attendance of over 2,500.

Fellowship in the Academy is a significant and cherished achievement held by only 10 percent of optometrists in the United States and Canada. A smaller number from other nations, plus a few non-optometrists, have earned this distinction. Fellowship is earned by demonstrating professional competence at a level commensurate with the high standards set by the Academy.

While in New Orleans, Dr. Heller also participated in the most prestigious continuing education program in optometry, the Ellersbrook Memorial Continuing Education Program. A related phase of the Academy's Annual Meeting included numerous papers on research in optometry and vision science, scientific posters and equipment, and symposia on such clinically important topics as lasers and ultraviolet radiation; recent developments in contact lenses; progress in pediatric optometry; new vistas for persons with low vision, including the legally blind; eye disorders related to Video Display Computer Terminals; and vision skills related to sports.

Republicans select Tewksbury delegates

The Tewksbury Republican Town Committee on January 22 elected a team of 18 delegates to the State Republican Caucus, to be held in the Boston Trade Center (former Commonwealth Pier 5) on March 10.

Elected were Don and Dolores Sheehan, Tom Boyle, Beverly A. Bennett, Maxine A. Drew, Mark Hanson, Greg Reynolds, Steven Reynolds, Mary M. Ouellette, Kevin Comtois and Lawrence Ford.

Also John Kuchinski, Kathy Kinsella, David LeBlanc, Martha Gaffney, Mary Gaffney and Jay Gaffney. Jay Gaffney is the chairman of the Tewksbury Town Republican Committee.

Two visitors, candidates for state office, were guests of the committee, Rick Armstrong of Falmouth, near the Cape Canal, is a candidate for Lieutenant Governor. Jay Gaffney spoke of his impressive record as a businessman and of his service to people living on Cape Cod.

Mr. Armstrong has two degrees from MIT, and a degree in theology, from an Episcopal school. He had bought a small boat yard on Cape Cod, and had worked at the Oceanographic Institute. He had been a selectman and had served on the Cape Cod Commission. "It is frustrating" he observed "what the State of Massachusetts is doing to our local government."

"We need people in government who know business - for local government."

He has been in the campaign for the past six months. "I am not in this to be the next governor in eight years. The Lieutenant Governor is looked upon as the person for Federal relations, and not to be the person to do the work with the state borders."

"We have a hard, critical time with the decisions to be made. We really need a two party system in Massachusetts!"

James (Jim) Rappaport of Concord is a candidate for U.S. Senator. "(Senator) John Kerry," he told his audience, "discovered we were in the campaign and called me a 'Pit Bull.'"

Rappaport spoke of the North Canal public housing in Lowell, which he said, was a place at which Kerry showed up, to smile for the papers. "That public housing" Rappaport charged "is a disgrace." He termed it as a mess and said that others had to take charge.

"Go to Lowell now, and see what has happened! All the graffiti is gone. People are taking pride in their place of living."

Rappaport compared the Democrat program and the Republican program. The Democrats, he told the audience, give a person a fish for a day. The Republicans try to teach them to fish - something that can last a lifetime!

"That's the difference with the Democrats."

"I am not necessarily in a campaign about 1990. This is about the year 2000, and beyond! We must motivate the people!"

"We don't have 80,000 state employees that we can energize! I feel strongly that we must get to the government issues!" Look at what happens to our high schools - 700 thousand graduates, and yet unable to write!

"The cutting of the capital gains tax is absolutely imperative for the creation of jobs and wealth among our people. Today there is no incentive for the creation of jobs!"

A research program, Rappaport said, "can take many months."

"If ever I stop being a representative of the people of Massachusetts I want the people to throw me out! I want to be an effective senator!"

Philip Cannizaro

Philip Cannizaro of Wilmington died Friday, January 19, 1990 at his residence following a lengthy illness.

Mr. Cannizaro, 83 years of age was born in Somerville, son of the late Gesualdo and Frances (Cangiamila) Cannizaro. He had spent many years in Medford prior to taking up residence in Wilmington 24 years ago. Prior to retirement he was employed as a shipfitter for the Boston Navy Yard for many years and was a member of the Guiseppe Roncali Sons of Italy, the Wilmington Senior Citizens and Golden Ages.

Mr. Cannizaro is survived by his beloved wife Mae R. (Bucci) Cannizaro of Wilmington; his son and daughter-in-law, Richard E. and Jane (Swisher) Cannizaro of Wilmington; his two daughters and sons-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James (Phyllis) Taylor of Wilmington and Mr. and Mrs. Frank (Marsha) DiPietro of Billerica; his two sisters, Mary DeFranzo of Medford and Terry Carter of Rochester, N.Y. Ten grandchildren and three great-grandchildren also survive.

Dorothy Jensen

Dorothy O. Jensen, 60 of Gorham, Maine died unexpectedly Friday, Jan. 19, 1990 at a Portland hospital.

Born in Newton, Mass., daughter of Gustave Frederick and Olive E. Oman, she graduated from Wilmington High School with the Class of 1947.

Mrs. Jensen was a homemaker, an avid reader and a communicant of Raymond Village Community Church.

She is survived by her husband, Emery A. Jensen of Gorham; two daughters, Mrs. Norman (Sandra) Ridlon of Raymond, Susan D. Jensen of Naples; a son, Dana E. Jensen of Scarborough; a brother, Donald F. Oman of Tucson, Ariz. and five grandchildren.

A private memorial service will be held at a later date. Arrangements are under the direction of the Hall Funeral Home, Casco, Me.

Contributions in her memory may be made to the Raymond Village Community church, in care of Veda Burtchell, Rt. 2, Box 2153, Rayamond, Me. 04071.

Eugene Kelley

Eugene A. Kelly, 64, died Friday, January 19, 1990 at St. John's Hospital in Lowell following a lengthy illness.

Born in East Boston, he was the son of the late Eugene A. and Louise B. (Crowley) Kelly and spent his youth in Tewksbury prior to joining the US Navy during World War II. Shortly after the war, he returned to Tewksbury where he lived for 37 years.

Mr. Kelly was employed as a plasterer prior to serving as a custodian for the Town of Tewksbury. He was also a 40 year member of the Father Coppins Council Knights of Columbus 4336.

He is survived by his wife, Marion R. (Lyons) Kelly of Tewksbury; his five sons, John P. and Michael J. both of Tewksbury, James K. of Raymond, N.H., Richard W. of Merrimack and William M. of Londonderry, N.H.; his four daughters, Maureen J. Kelly of Hudson, N.H., Mrs. James (Jeanne) Poitras of Bradford, Mrs. Gary (Joyce) McDougall of Raymond, N.H., and Joan M. Kelly of Tewksbury; his sister, Mrs. Patrick (Margaret) Izso of Springhill, Fl. (formerly of Medford), and six grandchildren.

His funeral was held from the W.S. Cavanaugh & Son Funeral Home, 374 Main St., Tuesday morning followed by a funeral mass at St. Dorothy's Church. Interment took place in Wildwood Cemetery.

Memorials in his name may be made to the American Cancer Society, 853 Main St., Suite 205, Tewksbury, MA 01876.

Foster Balser

Foster B. Balser died Sunday, January 21, 1990. A well known leader in the Boy Scouts, he was stricken with a heart attack while shoveling snow at his home, 136 Middlesex Avenue, Wilmington and died shortly afterward at Winchester Hospital.

A native of Arlington, he was 77 years old. He and his father moved into Wilmington 62 years ago. Foster, in 1933 because he could get no employment elsewhere, joined the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) and became a camp cook.

He served in the US Army Air Corps, 1106th Army Air Force Unit overseas in World War II. He was a sergeant, and served at Canosa, a part of the Foggia Air Base in eastern Italy, headquarters for the Fifteenth Army Air Corps, and headquarters for American bombers.

Balser participated in raids on the Ploesti, Rumania, oil fields, and on Schweinfurt, Germany, center of the German ball bearing industry. He was awarded the Presidential Medal with Oak Leaves. Later he served in France and Germany.

After he returned to Wilmington he was instrumental in starting a Boy Scout Troop, and in starting Camp Forty Acres in North Wilmington. Since then the camp has been expanded for use by Girl Scouts and by mentally handicapped children.

Mr. Balser also participated for many years in the Greater Lowell Boy Scout Council, in Lowell.

He was active in Friendship (Wilmington) Lodge of Masons and served as secretary for over 25 years.

Mr. Balser worked for many years as a salesman for the Webster Thomas Company, wholesale foods in Boston.

He is survived by his wife Louise B. (Nichols); a daughter, Ellen L. Kimble of Rochester, N.H.; two sons, Gary B. Balser of Lowell and James B. Balser of Westbrook, Maine; also a sister Edna Taylor of California and five grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at the Nichols Funeral Home, 187 Middlesex Ave., Wilmington Wednesday, January 24 at 11 a.m. with the Rev. Tom Dean officiating. Burial followed in Wildwood Cemetery in Wilmington.

Contributions in his memory may be made to the Masonic Nursing Home, PO Box 1000 Charlton, Ma. 01507, attention James Parker.

Middlesex adds courses

In response to an overwhelming demand for new computer courses introduced this year, Middlesex Community College (MCC) The Open Campus: Division of Continuing Education/Community Services has scheduled additional class sections not listed in the winter/spring catalog.

For students interested in an introductory computer course, additional sections of "Beginners' MS DOS" have been scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 3 from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and again Saturday, Feb. 10 from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. Students will learn how to format a new diskette, copy and backup files, as well as how to set up and change directories, manage files and use the line editor.Tuition is $39.

For those interested in getting a hands on introduction to one of the most popular microcomputer spreadsheet packages, an additional section of "Spreadsheets: Using Lotus 1-2-3" has been scheduled to begin February 10, from 12:30 to 5 p.m.Tuition for the two session course is $79.

WordPerfect is one of the best selling word processing software packages. Students can learn more about this program in "Getting started with WordPerfect." An additional two session workshop will begin Saturday, Feb. 24, from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Tuition is $79. An "Advanced Features of WordPerfect" workshop has also been added on Saturday, Jan. 27 from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.Tuition for this is $49.

For more information about any of the computer courses, call (617) 272-7342, ext. 3240. to register using Visa or MasterCard, call the direct registration operator at (617) 272-3331.

It's Time to Pay Larz!

Each year after Santa's busy time comes another season called "Time to Pay Larz." Thousands of people save a buck by renewing their Town Crier subscriptions without being billed.

Local readers (Wilmington and Tewksbury) can beat the increase by sending $15.00 to Larz. Readers who live elsewhere and don't want to miss a single issue should make their checks for $19.00.

After January 31, renewal notices will be mailed to all subscribers who have not renewed. The price will be $16.00 for Wilmington and Tewksbury and $20.00 for out of town.

New subscriptions are also available at these discount rates.

Please send the Town Crier to:

Dog report

The Wilmington dog officer is presently holding the following dogs. Dogs picked up in Wilmington are kept at the Central Animal Hospital in Stoneham.

Male shepherd-collie mix, young, black and tan, picked up Dec. 29 at 270 Burlington Ave. If this dog is not adopted by Friday, he will be put to death.

Also being held is a black lab puppy, available for adoption.

Dogs held for ten days are available for adoption. Due to limited budgets and space, it is difficult to keep dogs longer than the minimum ten days. Therefore adoptions are now more important than ever, to prevent dogs having to be euthanized.

The animal control officer may be contacted for adoptions by calling 658-7845. For dog complaints, contact the Wilmington Police Department on its business line, 658-5071.

John E. Joyce

Navy Petty Officer 1st Class John E. Joyce, son of Thomas and Evelyn Joyce of Middlesex Avenue, Wilmington, was visited by President George Bush and participated in joint exercises with the Tunisian armed forces while deployed to the Mediterranean Sea aboard the aircraft carrier USS Forrestal, homeported in Mayport, Fla.

During the deployment, President Bush addressed the crew as the kickoff event for the recent US/USSR Malta Summit, while observing carrier flight operations. Joyce participated in several exercises in various locations along with other units of the Sixth Fleet. The exercise included an amphibious exercise in the vicinity of Cap Serrat, Tunisia as well as several air exercises. The aircraft carrier's primary role was to provide aircraft for close air support.

He joined the Navy in June 1981.

Arrests

Tuesday at 1:30 p.m., Officer Greg Farnkoff arrested Alex Napolitano of Ellingwood Avenue, Billerica charging him with operating after suspension of his drivers license.

Officers Miller and Axelrod arrested Terrie J. Whippie of 1690 Main St., Tewksbury on the basis of three warrants Tuesday night. He was held overnight in lieu of $1300 bail.

Early Wednesday morning Officers Harris and Jepson arrested Karl. A. Houston, 50 County Rd., Tewksbury after a computer check showed his license had been suspended. He was bailed for Thursday at Woburn Court.

Officer Jim Peterson arrested two men in separate incidents Wednesday morning. David Sanford of 9 Roosevelt Road, Wilmington and Mitchell Bennett of 36 Water St., Tewksbury were charged with driving after suspension of their operators' license.

Three Lawrence men were arrested on Boutwell Street Wednesday night after officers recovered a stolen car. Edgardo Colon, 5 Haverhill St., and George Zambrano, 202 Bruce St. and a juvenile all of Lawrence were charged with larceny of a motor vehicle. A fourth suspect escaped and is believed to have stolen another car from Boutwell Street.

Unfortunately the owner was not aware of the missing car until eight o'clock the next morning. Arresting officers were White, Hancock and Hanlon.

A Wilmington man was arrested by Officers Miller and Mauriello after an investigation into the attempted theft of snowmobiles. Robert E. Riccio of 10 Martens St., was charged with assault by means of a dangerous weapon, (a truck) and two counts of attempted larceny over $250 and malicious damage to real property.

Thursday night Officers Mauriello and White arrested William Rice of 18 Heath St., Tewksbury charging him with underage possession of alcohol. He was arrested on Woburn Street near Industrial Way.

Friday afternoon officers Hanlon and Chalifour arrested Joseph Britton, 456 Main St., Wilmington on the basis of a Wilmington warrant.

Later on Friday Officers Chalifour and Hanlon arrested Robert Ryan of 11 Nichols Rd., Tewksbury while on radar patrol on Parker Street. Ryan was charged with license violations and unregistered motor vehicle.

Robert Clifford of 293 Lowell St., Wilmington was arrested Saturday night by Officer Jim White on the basis of a warrant issued by Woburn District Court.

to seven percent for town employees. Stapczynski said he would pursue that option, but it requires a "joint" effort on both sides.

Selectmen Chairman Robert Cain put most of the blame for the fiscal crunch on mismanagement at the state level. He said in laying off town employees, "the town is taking the action the state refuses to do." He pointed out "there are no sacred cows" as the town tries to wrestle with its financial problems.

The next step in the ongoing budget process is for the finance committee to review Stapczynski's budget in open session. Fincom will deliberate on the budget each Tuesday and Wednesday from February 6 to the end of March. A joint planning board/fincom public hearing will be held March 27 to go over the final budget and warrant article requests for the annual town meeting.

Whist Monday

The last whist of January will be held next Monday, January 29 starting at 1 p.m. Don't forget to buy your ticket if you want to be one of the winners of one of the $5 envelopes that will be drawn at the whist game. The money derived from the drawings is used to buy gifts for the whist games. It is not necessary to play whist to take a 25 cent chance. Any senior can buy a ticket, you may be a winner.

February social

We are in the process of signing up for the council's February therapeutic social. It will be a Valentine dinner dance on February 14 in the Tewksbury/Wilmington Elks Hall in Tewksbury. A roast beef dinner with all the trimming will be served at 7 p.m. music for the evening will be provided by "The Big Band Sounds of Chet Harnden." A $3 non-refundable deposit will be required to help defray the cost of the social.

Exercise classes

To get the proper exercise doctors recommend will be beneficial to us, requires at least one hour a day every other day. To help you get at least three of these days the exercise class is held Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings from 10 to 11. The classes are free to all Wilmington residents. Some of you may feel the one hour instructed class is not enough. In that case you can continue in the exercise room, riding the exercise bike, walking on the treadmill or using the rowing machine. We do request you let us know in the office that you wish to use the exercise room equipment.

Ceramics anyone?

Carol, our new ceramic teacher can take more students in her class on Wednesday afternoon from one to four. If you are looking for a relaxing yet fulfilling hobby, ceramics might be to your liking and while learning you will meet some very nice seniors. Why sit home watching TV when you can spend Wednesday afternoons at the center making some new friends. Try it, I am sure you will be happy you did.

Craft class back in action

Now that the fair and holidays are over the craft class is back at work learning to make some wonderful articles for their own pleasure or to sell on their own. The class meets Wednesdays from 9 a.m. to noon. Before sitting down to work they go to the kitchen for a cup of coffee, a little pastry and conversation. Then off to work they go for the next three hours. This is another way to meet some nice people while learning a hobby to be proud of under the talents of Mary Valentine. Don't worry if you make a few mistakes, Mary has the patience of a saint.

SSI January topic

At the January Council meeting, we had an excellent guest speaker. Thomas Abbott from the Social Security Office in Lowell. He covered many subjects of importance to all of us. If you were not in attendance one particular subject I am sure many of our seniors are not taking advantage of, yet they may qualify is supplemental security income (SSI). Any person 65 years of age or over, with an income of $514.82 or less living alone and very little in other resources; or a couple with an income of $780.72 or less may qualify and should call the Social Security office in Lowell for more information.

In most cases all business can be done by telephone. Other persons such as disabled may qualify at any age even though they are living with another person. The income of a disabled person can be no higher than $344.92; if blind, $535.74. Remember if you qualify for only $1 in SSI you automatically qualify for Medicaid.

Medex increase

Another subject Mr. Abbott spoke on was Blue Cross seeking a very large increase on its Medex policies due to the failure of the catastrophic bill being accepted by the senior citizens. Well, it did not take very long. The newspapers and tv enlightened us this past weekend of the 67 percent increase Blue Cross asked for was allowed.

This increase will force many of our seniors to drop their policy. Please write to Timothy Gailey, Division of Insurance, 280 Friend St., Boston, MA 02114 objecting strongly to this unfair increase. With the seniors struggling to pay the high increases in fuel, food and clothing this enormous increase will certainly deplete their income to nothing. Medical treatment, they will not be able to afford.

Wilmington school news

Shawsheen School

Hats off to the students at the Shawsheen school who will be celebrating "Hat Day" on Tuesday, January 30. Since this date marks the halfway point of the school year, the students will be celebrating at the end of the day by sharing half of something with their peers; for example: half a bag of candy, half a bag of chips, half a dozen cupcakes; etc. Think of something you can share and take it in on the 30th.

The fifth graders have entered a contest sponsored by the Elks on the topic "Say no to Drugs." The winner will receive a $50 savings bond. What a great way to culminate Project Dare: Good luck to all fifth graders. The winner of the contest will be announced at a later date.

The pancake breakfast turned out to be a wonderful way to start out a Saturday morning. The menu was enjoyed by all and some even went back for seconds. The PAC wants to thank all those on the Activities Committee who organized this family event and a special thanks to those who worked in the kitchen. Without everyone's help, this event wouldn't have run as smoothly.

Reminders: Monday, January 29 is the kindergarten change over. The next PAC meeting is Monday, February 12 at 7:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria. This day will also be a noon dismissal for all students.

Wilmington High School

The next high school PAC meeting will be Monday, January 29 at 7:30 p.m. in the school library. Guest speaker for the evening will be Mrs. Florence Athanasia, director of guidance.

Parents of all high school students are welcome to attend what promises to be an informative evening.

Wildwood School

Reminder - on January 29 Mrs. Marrano's kindergarten sessions will changeover.

Len Cabral (storyteller) came to the school on January 17 and gave two outstanding presentations.

The next teacher in-service will take place Monday, February 12. Students will be dismissed at noon.

Mark your calendar for a family fun night at Roller World on Thursday, February 15. Information on this activity will be going home soon.

Fifth grade students are invited to a Red Sox baseball game by Officer Spencer on a weekend late in April. Surrounding communities who also participated in PROJECT DARE will be attending the ball game. The cost is $8 (includes ticket and bus) and the permission slips must be returned by Wednesday, January 24 to the school.

North Intermediate

Wednesday, Jan. 10, a meeting of the North and West Intermediate student councils was held, hosted by the North. Both groups met for over an hour for the purpose of sharing ideas and plans.

It as decided that both schools would be involved in a joint "friendship" dance in February. The high school cafeteria was selected as a neutral site. All participants were very excited about the meeting. Plans have been made for the NIS Student Council to visit the West in the near future.

There will be a Pac meeting at NIS Tuesday, January 30, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the library.

Thank you for your Bradlees/Stop & Shop receipts. Our current total is approximately $5,529. Please remember that in these times of tight budgets, this is a great opportunity to get much needed equipment for our school. Final weeks for collecting the receipts are approaching as they cannot be dated later than March 10. Remember to ask those relatives, neighbors and friends to help us. Again thanks for your help and keep up the good work.

On Monday, Jan. 22, the eighth grade students will attend an assembly regarding information for the Shawsheen Tech High School.

The NIS is seeking a few parents who would be interested in attending a conference entitled "Focus on Parents." This conference on innovative practices for parental school involvement will be conducted in Worcester. If you are interested, send a note to Mr. Tikonoff's attention.

Report cards for the second term will close January 25. Reports cards will be going home February 6, 1990.

• School budget

Committeeman Brad Jackson called the town manager's figures a "worst case scenario." He said both the town and school side should share the projected revenues of $448,581 so the school budget would only decrease by $225,000 over FY 1990. Others agreed.

Though Dr. James Demos complimented town and school officials for cooperating on the budget, he said his committee needed to come up with "realistic" figures which would provide a quality education.

"This town is worth (only) as much as its educational system is worth," he said.

Chairman Bob Surran told fellow members he didn't go along with the town manager's "scenario." He suggested they put aside his figures and set their own goals and priorities as they progressed with budget talks.

"The ball is clearly in the committee's court, both fiscally and politically," said Fay.

n. A specialist in the diagnosis, treatment and care of the feet: Doctor of Podiatric Medicine (D.P.M.), a Foot Physician

Choose the Right Specialist to Treat Your Feet!

Your feet keep you going. Their care requires a specialist. Today's modern Podiatrists at Northeast Podiatric are specially trained for the task. We are State licensed physicians and surgeons of the feet. If surgery is needed, we deliver high quality surgical foot care on an outpatient basis either in an accredited hospital or in our own, accredited office-based, podiatric surgical facilities.

As Podiatrists we have completed 4 years of regular college, plus four more years of Podiatric Medical School, specializing in medicine and surgery of the feet.

If you have questions about a foot problem, make an appointment or call and ask to speak with one of the doctors. Call us today.

Certified office-based, podiatric surgical facility by the Accreditation Association for Podiatric Surgical Facilities.

Tracey leads WHS

Wilmington High School senior Tracey Greer perches on top of the uneven bars enroute to a 7.2 first place score in MVC action against the Billerica Indians Friday afternoon. Tracey also took firsts in the balance beam (8.3) and the vault (8.35) for an overall score of 31.9 as the WHS girls took a 116.25-104.55 victory. (Rick Cooke photo).

Redmen whip Wildcats

by Mike Stuart

On a night where the intensity level rivaled only that of a pickup game, the Tewksbury Redmen fought off a late surge by the Wildcats to waltz away with an 85-70 victory last Tuesday night at the TMHS gymnasium.

Although Wilmington enjoyed a fourth quarter surge, turning a 64-43 deficit into just an eight point Redmen lead, 66-58, the two teams just couldn't muster the level of play of previous years.

Wildcats Mike Burns and Joey McFadden came off the bench and sparked a spirited Wilmington comeback by feeding the ball to Jamey Robichaud, who pumped in 31 points on the night.

But it was Redmen players Derek Weitz, 13 points, Sean Mackey, 14 points, Gary Kidder 18 points and Pat Romano, 16 points, who consistently scored key buckets and grabbed big rebounds to hold off any WHS comeback.

TMHS coach Charlie Micol had these post game comments: "Our kids can shoot the ball really well." We have good shooters, but they haven't been on. Tonight, they were."

The Redmen displayed that hot hand with five three pointers in the first half, along with the full court press that pushed Tewksbury over the hump.

Later in the week the Wildcats fell at Methuen despite another red-hot hand by Robichaud who finished with 21 points.

Andover edges Wildcats

Andover topped the Wilmington High School girls' basketball team, 58-52 Friday night despite the superb play of seniors Gina Martiniello (21 points) and Annmarie Andersen (14).

It was a tough week for WHS, as last Tuesday night Tewksbury topped the Wildcats, 56-49 behind Joanne McNamara's 17 points.

Andersen finished with 22 points and Martiniello scored 15 to lead the Wildcats.

Wildcats avenge defeat

Wildcats 51 No. Andover 26

This past weekend the seventh grade girls' basketball team avenged its' only league loss by thoroughly defeating North Andover, 51-26.

The Wilmington girls came out right from the start with good pressure defense and fastbreak basketball, never letting up until the final buzzer sounded.

Kristi Lyman and Erin Falzone led the offense with 11 and nine points respectively. The rest of the scoring was balanced, with everyone having at last two points.

The Wildcats are now 3-1 in the River Valley League and are currently in second place.

Eighth graders

A shorthanded eighth grade team
(victims of the flu) was defeated by
St. Monica's of Methuen (33-19).

Wilmington offense was led by Lynette Sbano with 13 points. The Wildcats were outscored in all quarters by good support from St.
Monica's bench.

Heather Pillsbury and Erica Solas played good defense for the Wildcats. The Wildcats were in foul trouble from the start and did not have the backup support needed.

Wilmington Adult Basketball

Reck-4 stuns Deli, 67-50

Led by the fine all-around play of Jon Nolan, Bob Perry and Peter Gedney, Reck-4 dealt a severe blow to the playoff hopes of T's Deli with a convincing 67-50 win last week in Wilmington Adult Basketball League action.

With it's team finally together, Reck 4 (out of the playoff picture themselves) will be the obvious spoiler down the stretch drive.

Reck-4 gets plenty of scoring from Tom Woods, Steve Lee and Dennis Clemens as well as good floor play from Peter Revelas, Mike Woods, Jeff Bowen and Mike Hardiman.

Reck 4 just missed spoiling Stelio's week, taking the champs to the wire before losing, 100-91.

Computer orientations at Wilmington library

Wilmington Memorial Library has resumed scheduling orientations to the Apple IIGS computers available to the public. The next orientation groups will be held Tuesday, Jan. 30 at 7 p.m.; Monday, Feb. 5 at 9:30 a.m.; Tuesday, Feb. 27 at 7 p.m.

The orientation lasts about one hour and patrons are urged to register in advance due to limited space. The groups will meet in the second floor computer area. A computer tutor is available every Monday evening to help solve questions about various software programs.

A wide variety of patrons has taken advantage of the free computer use at the library. Adults have found it useful for writing purposes, sharpening math and typing skills, and in overcoming computer anxiety by developing their skill at their own pace.

Students have been intrigued by Carmen Sandiego and Print Shop, tutored in algebra and geometry, and assisted in homework projects by programs such as AppleWorks, Bank St. Writer, TimeLiner, and Crossword Magic. Youngsters now have a variety of pre-school and early elementary software available to them and their parents. These software programs, such as Muppetville and Muppet Word Book, assist in developing shape, color and letter recognition skills and early reading and writing readiness.

The computers and software were purchased for the library through a grant from the Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners. The library presently owns over 50 software programs and that number continues to grow. The latest additions to the collection are:

Ticket to Paris and Ticket to Spain - foreign language/social studies programs that can be played in English or French or Spanish. Those who need a basic introduction to the computer and how to operate it should register in advance for one of the orientation programs.

Garden Club plans spring activities

If you are germinating thoughts of a new garden or sprouting ideas for the old one - spring is just around the corner and it's never too early to start planning. Upcoming activities at the Wilmington Garden Club will include a seed catalog party.

This month the Garden Club will present demonstrations by Kathleen Shinnars in traditional and modern floral arrangements for the formal dinner centerpiece.

The Wilmington Garden Club offers a variety of interesting topics from conservation to horticulture, civic projects to home gardening ventures.

The Garden Club is a great way to meet new people, learn about subjects that perhaps you have never thought about and challenge your personal interests.

The next meeting will be held January 25 at 7:30 p.m. at the 4th of July headquarters opposite the common. If you would like to join and cannot be at the meeting or have any questions, contact Judi Johnston at 657-4766.

Open house at Cuddle Care

Cuddle Care Day Care, located at 511 So. Main St., Andover, will hold an open house Saturday, Feb. 3 from 10 a.m. to noon. Programs are available for children three months through all day kindergarten and all programs are developmentally appropriate.

Cuddle Care, now in its second year, is a family owned and operated business. Gwen Hedrick, director, has two daughters who are teachers at the center as well as three grandchildren who attend.

Parents may enroll for the summer or fall at this time. There are also limited spaces available at this time. The experienced staff is warm and loving, as they endeavor to meet the needs of the individual child, in promoting a positive self image.

The center is also open to visitors at all times.

Ipswich River forum slated for Jan. 31

An open forum on "Land Use Education and Zoning to Protect the Ipswich River" will be held at the Fourth of July Building in Wilmington Wednesday, January 31, 1990 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The Fourth of July Building is located off Route 62 on Middlesex Avenue across from the town common.

The towns of Wilmington, North Reading and Reading will be the focus of study and discussion dealing with the quality of the total environment in the upper Ipswich River watershed. A panel of speakers will address how the land is utilized by residents, business, developers and others, and how these activities impact upon water quality and other life supportive, life enhancing characteristics of the area.

Aerial and ground views of the river will be shown and land use and zoning regulations will be analyzed by the panelists. Important current issues and problems will also be discussed.

Interested area residents who are concerned about the quality of drinking water or local land and environment are encouraged to attend the forum which is co-sponsored by the Ipswich River Watershed Association and the league of Women Voters of Wilmington.

For more information call (508) 658-4394.

Monet slide lecture at Wilmington Arts Center

The Wilmington Council for the Arts will present a distinguished member of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, in a lecture on the forthcoming exhibition, Monet in the 90s, Mrs. Martha M. Wright. The hour long slide lecture will be given at the Wilmington Center for the Arts Wednesday, January 31, at 7:30 p.m. with a snow date on Wednesday, February 7, also at 7:30 p.m.

The long awaited Monet exhibition at the Museum of Fine Arts is a splendid international exhibition of paintings by the renowned French Impressionist artist, Claude Monet. The unprecedented exhibition will reassemble approximately 90 series paintings begun when Monet was 50 years old. The series paintings were revolutionary and represented the culmination of his life long concern with the beauties of his native land. Monet has long been a celebrated French Impressionist, whose work has been examined in the larger context of French history only in recent years. Following its premiere in Boston, Monet in the 90s will travel to the art Institute of Chicago and the Royal Academy in London.

Admission to the exhibit at the MFA is by reserved ticket only. (Don't forget the Wilmington Artibus trip Thursday, Feb. 8; call Annette Campbell for tickets, 658-2404.)

Mrs. Stewart has been the Museum's overseas art tours lecturer to Japan and Asia since 1964. She has degrees in fine arts from Smith College and Harvard University.

The Wilmington Council for the Arts will present her lecture at no charge to attendees.

Registration for adult education in Wilmington to be Feb. 7

Wilmington Community Education will be conducting registration for adult evening classes from 7 to 8:30 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 7 at Wilmington High School cafeteria.

These winter/spring offerings have a variety of courses which are available for your enjoyment. The eight week classes that begin Monday, Feb. 12 are computer basics, Lotus 1.2.3, computer use, word processing IBM, high school equivalency, managing and starting your own small business, financial planning, typing I and II, French I. The art and health classes are cardio pulmonary resuscitation, dancers level I, middle Eastern dance, quilting, flower arranging, introduction to watercolor, tile painting, cake decorating, furniture restoration, and play bridge.

Many of the courses have a senior citizen discount which applies when the classes have enrolled a minimum of eight full tuition in each.

Special highlights this spring are adult band on Tuesday evenings at the North Intermediate School. This course features Captain Mike Donovan, Air Force bandmaster as the leader. Adults who have previously played an instrument and wish to renew the happiness of playing with a group are invited to take this class.

Acting workshop, another highlight, is instructed by David Ian. He will provide us a chance to be in the limelight and who knows maybe a community theater.

The course Personal Awareness and Family Life is a special highlight this spring. This is a discussion class which features the workbook, How to Talk So Kids Will Listen and Listen So Kids Will Talk by author/educator, Elaine Mazlish will be featured.

There are some workshops which are one or two evenings of fun and self improvement. These include chess, collecting "bubble gum cards" and substitute teaching in our schools.

Come have some fun meeting people and being with friends at this uncommon school of partnership. For further information call Alan Chase, director of Wilmington Community Education at 694-6041 after 3:30 p.m.

A&M NURSERY & FLORIST
Tree Talk

by Mike DiGiorgio

CLEAR THINKING

In recent years, the glass vase has emerged as the clear choice for displaying flower arrangements. The transparency of glass allows the entire flower stem to be viewed. This creates a simplicity in appearance in which the arrangement may seem to rise up unaided from a table, much like flowers rise up from the earth. For an added touch of elegance, many turn to cut crystal vases and bowls. Such sumptuous flower holders call for the classic elegance of such regal blooms as roses, lilies or orchids. With stems visible through decorative clear crystal, a person is able to better appreciate the vitality of these natural forms. This way, the accent is placed upon what truly matters, the flowers themselves.

A crystal vase makes a wonderful wedding or anniversary gift. You can plan all the flowers for the Spring wedding with our experts when you come to A & M NURSERY AND FLORIST, 911 East Street in Tewksbury. We're convenient to downtown and route 93. We are a full service landscape designer, garden center and supplier of fresh cut flowers for every occasion. We enjoy answering your questions about gardening, indoors or out. Call us at 851-4472.

HINT: With clear vases, regular water changes are necessary to avoid murky water which clouds the effect.

Michelle Micalizzi to wed George Hooper

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cann of Burnap Street, Wilmington and Anthony Micalizzi of Marjorie Road have announced the engagement of their daughter Michelle Lynn Micalizzi to George W. Hooper 2nd, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hooper of Allen Park Drive, Wilmington.

Michelle is a 1983 graduate of Wilmington High School and graduated from Fitchburg State College in 1987. She is currently employed by New England Pathology Services as a medical technologist.

Her fiancé, a 1981 graduate of Wilmington High School is now a licensed electrician employed by Leonard Electric.

A spring wedding is planned.

Jill Pirie, James Phillips exchange vows

Jill Pirie, daughter of William and Barbara Pirie of Warren Avenue, Reading became the bride of James E. Phillips, son of Dorothy Phillips and the late Edward Phillips of Grace Drive, Wilmington, September 23, in a ceremony performed by the Rev. Ronald Wade in the First Congregational Church, Stoneham.

Joanne Sordillo, sister of the bride served as matron of honor and close friends Tina Lewis of Wilmington and Jeanne Wheaton of Billerica, acted as the bride's attendants.

Joe Ruskowski of Wilmington, served his close friend as best man while ushering duties were in charge of Bill Beliveau and Mike Marini, both of Wilmington, also close friends.

The new Mrs. Phillips is a graduate of Reading Memorial High School and Northeastern University.

Her husband is a graduate of Wilmington High School.

Following a reception at Day's Inn, Woburn the couple honeymooned on Kawai and Maui, Hawaii.

Cynthia Quandt weds John Johnstone

Cynthia Marie Quandt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander E. Quandt of Wilmington became the bride of John Robert Johnstone, son of Helen Borman and the late Donald Johnstone, and stepson of Dwaine Borman of Wilmington on Saturday, August 26.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Lynch at St. Anthony's Church in Woburn.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride's attendants included her sister, Lee Stowell as matron of honor, and Christine Haggood, Kimberly Smith and Terri Merrill, friends of the bride.

David Johnstone served his brother as best man while ushering duties were performed by Richard Barnes, Richard Lewis and Bryan Lundgren, friends of the groom.

The wedding ceremony was followed by a reception at the Sons of Italy Hall in Wilmington.

The new Mrs. Johnstone is a 1986 graduate of Wilmington High school, currently employed as an administrative aid at Litton Itek of Bedford.

Her husband, a 1983 graduate of Shawshen Tech is employed as a supervisor at Offices Unlimited, Inc. of Lawrence.

Following a honeymoon in Florida, the couple is now living in Burlington.

Mary Keaney is bride of Robert Leverone

Mary Louise Keaney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Keaney of Chelmsford became the bride of Robert Joseph Leverone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Leverone of Wilmington.

The ceremony was officiated by Justice of the Peace Mrs. Priscilla Ward at the Shores of Silver Lake. A reception for friends and family was held at the home of the groom's parents.

Following a honeymoon in Maine, the couple is now living in Wilmington.

Monika Stemmler weds

Monika E. Stemmler, daughter of Heinz and Claire Stemmler of Boutwell Street, Wilmington became the bride of Grant Wright, son of Warren and Barbara Wright of Morningside Drive, Beverly at a Nuptial ceremony at St. Thomas Church on September 30. The Rev. Father Charles Hughes and the Rev. Homer McCue of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Beverly performed the ceremony.

Debbie Zambarnardi served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Michelle Stemmler, Cheryl Stemmler, Susan Wright-Westover, Martina Witts, Kathy Stone and Renee Burns. Lee Burns served as best man while ushers included Mike Stemmler, Ron Stemmler, Peter Westover, David Rubino and Kevin Wood.

A reception followed the ceremony at Danversport Yacht Club.

Following a honeymoon to Oahu, Maui, and Kauai, Hawaii, the couple is now living in Danvers.

Lynette Ceaser, Frank Scalli to wed

Mr. and Mrs. William Ceaser of Aldrich Road, Wilmington have announced the engagement of their daughter Lynette L. Ceaser to Frank J. Scalli, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scalli of Gloucester.

Lynette, a graduate of Wilmington High School is employed as a retail general manager.

Her fiancé is a graduate of Gloucester High School and Salem State College. He is employed by Ipswich Country Club as the construction developer manager.

Jennifer Bissett to wed Victoriano Layon

Thomas Bissett of Wilmington and Mrs. Lynne Bissett of Stoneham have announced the engagement of their daughter Jennifer Lynne to Victoriano Layon son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Layon of McDonald Road, Wilmington.

Jennifer is a 1989 graduate of Wilmington High school currently employed by the Federal Aviation Administration in Burlington.

Her fiancé is a 1989 graduate of Shawshen Tech and is presently in basic training for the Army.

An October wedding is planned.

PROBATE COURT

Middlesex, ss.
To Agnes J. Jordan also known as Julia A. Jordan, John R. Jordan and Janice M. Jordan, all of Wilmington in the County of Middlesex, and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Agnes J. Jordan also known as Julia A. Jordan of Wilmington in the County of Middlesex representing that he hold as tenant in common one undivided third part or share of certain land lying in Wilmington in said County of Middlesex and briefly described as follows:

The land with the buildings thereon situated in said Wilmington being shown as lot 80C on a plan entitled "Plan of Land in Wilmington Mass." Arthur E. Harding, Jr., Reg. Land Surveyor, dated January 31, 1964 and recorded with Middlesex North District Registry of Deeds Book of Plans 99, Plan 124B, and bounded and described as follows:

Southeasterly by Carter Lane, one hundred eleven and 52/100 (111.52) feet;

Southwesterly by Lot 79, as shown on said plan, one hundred fifty and 16/100 (150.16) feet;

Northwesterly by Lot 87A, being land of Leo W. and Marjorie Dupras, one hundred twenty-five and 54/100 (125.54) feet; and;

Northeasterly by Lot 80B, as on said plan, one hundred sixty-five and 42/100 (165.42) feet.

Containing 18,639 square feet of land, according to said plan.

setting forth that he desires that - all the following described part of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than $145,000.00 dollars, and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto you or your attorney should file a written appearance before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the ninth day of March 1990, the return day of this citation.

Witness, Sheila E. McGovern Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this ninth day of January 1990.

Don't talk back!

by Bill Conlon

Do you talk to your bait? Strange as it sounds, many anglers do.

Men who wouldn't dream of ever talking to a house cat, who would rather eat a parakeet than talk to one, are the same ones who talk to the minnows in their bait buckets.

"Hi, little guys! Which one of you is going to catch me a real big one today?"

The curious ritual of bait talking is usually done in private, or at least when nobody is nearby to hear it. A reputation is a terrible thing to lose, especially for something as odd as talking to a bucket of fish who can't hear you anyway.

"Hey you, Speedy, get over here! I see you in there. You won't get away. Hey. HEY! Awright."

For the most part, bait talking is done while the bait is alive, though not always. Occasionally, a dead minnow will be tossed into the air, and the direction of the head is used as a pointer, to tell which tip-up is going to produce next. The "Magic Shiner" never fails. True fact!

Of course, a dead minnow is not the luckiest one in the world, but the shiner toss is routine. You'll see the Magic Shiner trick almost as often as the One-Footed Dance Around The Hole on a slow day. Look for it, and you'll see it.

"Yoo-hoo! Is there a fat boy in the bucket who needs work? Have I got a job for you ... this might hurt a bit ... there."

Bait talking is never done in the tackle shop. Never. The bait dealer would look at you rather funny if you started talking to his produce. He might think you have more in mind than simple fishing, and he may think twice about selling you a dozen.

"I need a volunteer! Are you the one? Atta boy! Go get 'em!"

Bait talking is commonly done as

Blizzard

the bait is swimming in the bucket, or when the tip-ups are pulled for bait checks. Many anglers keep an eye on the bait bucket, to see if the shiners are active and swimming, in the belief that moving bait means active fish nearby. It doesn't always work, but you'll do most anything on a slow day.

"BAIT CHECK! How you doin' buddy? Still alive or fakin' it? Eh, did I see a twitch? Good. Get back to work."

Talking to bait, however, is only done on slow days. If the ice fishing is fast, and the flags are popping up all day, you won't have time for such stupidity. Then again, a fast day on the ice means you're likely to run out of bait in a few hours.

"Last one? Awww. Okay, lucky, show us what you've got."

Look at it this way -- how can you expect complete sanity out of some guy who voluntarily goes outside in a howling blizzard, just to spend all day trying to catch a fish that he could buy, already cooked and with a nice white wine on the side?

Simple -- it's ice fishing, and we never said we were sane. Hardly.

"Right, little buddies? Yeah!"

This coming Sunday, the Greater

Lowell Fly Fishers, Inc., will hold the first of their two annual winter fishing derbies. On January 28, the event will be held on Lake Attitash, in Amesbury, with a $10 entry fee, and the second event is planned for February 11 on Lake Mascuppic.

The next derby by the Merrimack Valley Bass Masters will be held on February 18, on Lake Mascuppic.

Also on February 18, look for the annual ice fishing derby on Ames Pond, Tewksbury, by Shawsheen Watershed Environmental Action Team (S.W.E.A.T.). Metropolitan Life, the owner of Ames Pond, has again given their permission for the S.W.E.A.T. derby

Bill Rosa returns to Wilmington for joint meeting of Lions Clubs

by Capt. Larz Neilson
Lions Club meetings are places where Lions, a fraternal organization have their meetings, and the members indulge in a "roar." There is a lot of fun, some ritualistic, and some, well, bantering.

Tewksbury has a Lions Club. Wilmington has a Lions Club. Part of the banter between the clubs is that the Tewksbury Club is from "North Wilmington" and the Wilmington club is the one from "South Tewksbury." Anyway, North Wilmington and South Tewksbury had a meeting in the Wilmington K of C on January 17.

Bill Rosa, who lives in Quincy, and is the cabinet secretary/treasurer of District 33N was the only person present not from one or the other of the two towns. Bill, 30 or so years ago was a Wilmington resident (Kendall Street) who attended Wilmington High School. In his talk to the two clubs Bill told of playing in the Wilmington High School football team, and how the Wilmington players had left the "bad guys from Tewksbury laying on the football field," in their football games.

President Jim Buckley of the Wilmington club was, it seems, planning to have some fun with the Tewksbury members, using the January 10 Town Crier as background material. That particular issue of the Town Crier was the one in which Town Crier writers and former Tewksbury Selectman Paul Sullivan had a wonderful time ripping people to pieces.

Jim Buckley didn't get a chance to have his fun. Two young men were part of the program, telling sad tales of being cocaine addicts. They spoke for 20 minutes or possibly half an hour.

Those two young men followed the talk of Bill Rosa. During the meeting, Bill Rosa came over to sit with the writer and started a conversation about Foster Balser and Dudley Buck, both of whom were Boy Scout leaders over a quarter of a century ago in Wilmington. To hear Rosa talk those two men must have been the finest members of any Lions Club, though neither were Lions.

But he was talking of them as Scout Leaders. He had recognized

Joint meeting

Charlie Stella of Tewksbury, Bill Rosa, formerly of Wilmington and Mike Burns of Wilmington, at the joint Lions Club meeting.

the writer as the person who had reported about the two men, in the Town Crier, a paper which he fondly remembered.

Foster Balser, well known in Scouting circles in Wilmington and elsewhere, died on Sunday morning, not four days after the conversation. Dudley Buck, deceased about 30 years, is not so well known today.

Dudley Buck, born in Santa Monica, Calif., was possibly a member of the Wilmington Buck family. The Bucks are among Wilmington's oldest families, and most people in the United States with the name Buck can trace their roots to Wilmington. Dudley and the writer wanted to explore that idea, but never did get the opportunity.

When he was very young his father lost everything, probably as a result of the then Depression. His father took the family to the Puget Sound, in the State of Washington, where he purchased a "stump ranch." A stump ranch was a place that had been logged of all trees, and only the stumps were left. In the 1930s a person could buy a stump ranch for about a dollar an acre.

Put up a place in which to live, and cultivate between the stumps. Maybe after 10 or 12 years the stumps would be gone, and there would be a decent farm. That's where Dudley grew up.

Dudley was a brilliant man. He earned a doctorate in physics. After that he went east, to MIT, in Cambridge, and started work on a study of the effects of absolute zero, where there is no temperature.

While Dudley was at MIT he had to have a place to live. An advertisement in a Boston paper told of a home on Sprucewood Road, and that circumstance brought him to Wilmington.

The Boy Scouts and Camp Forty Acres attracted him. Foster Balser ran Camp Forty Acres, and Dudley Buck became the man who entertained the Boy Scouts with wondrous tales, around the evening embers of a campfire.

Any Boy Scout who heard Dudley speak never forgot it.

During the time that Eisenhower was president, Dudley invented a device that greatly reduced the size of computers. Just prior to that the computers used to compute presidential elections took up a couple of rooms at M.I.T.

Life Magazine had a picture which took up an entire page showing Dudley's hand and the device, just a sliver of coiled wire. Everyone in Wilmington was proud of Dudley.

Dudley Buck was elected to the school committee. He became a lay reader in the Methodist Church and he still continued his work with the Boy Scouts.

Came a day when Dudley was not feeling well, but one in which he had to go to MIT because of the work he was doing.

A few days later he was dead of pneumonia. He was only 32.

No. That's not Lions Club talk, but it is what Bill Rosa and Larz were speaking during the meeting.

127 year-old Woburn Church A new pastor for St. Charles Reverend Paul Walsh, the new pastor of St. Charles Church, Woburn is a sincerely warm, positive and humorous man. In the few months he's been in Woburn, he feels "most welcomed" by the community and sees a tremendous amount of "great faith" in the people. He has, also, been presented with the challenges of his tenure, including skyrocketing fuel bills; maintenance and repair bills; insurance bills and repayment of an Archdiocesan loan.

However, when discussing goals and strategies, he feels one of the unique gifts of this century-old church has to offer is its creative and quality education at the St. Charles School. He expresses some surprise at its low profile status in the community, especially since it's the only alternative to public education. Therefore, one of the top priorities of this parish administration is to dispel the false premises of a religious education.

Number one, students are accepted from other parishes or religious beliefs. Although rooted in the Christian tradition, the school is "focused towards all aspects of our social, environmental and global concerns in preparing the students to take their places in the workforce of this technological society." Enrollment is held later in the spring.

Number two, Father Walsh feels very committed to making the school affordable to all families. With educational cost rising faster than the cost of living, he is talking of other parishes and churches streamlining their best resources and pooling together their combined talents. He does say whether a religious order of sisters were available or not, it would not change the salary structure because today the cost is comparable.

At present, there are many short term goals being initiated to keep his commitment of affordability, along with a projected five year financial plan to further this goal.

One of these goals is to market this alternative to public education and advertise its substantial benefits by having resource people visit different parishes, churches and informational seminars. He hopes parents will consider St. Charles School when making a decision concerning their child's education.

Thirdly, Father Walsh feels that "parents trust the moral values of the school and are willing to back up its authority." It is not like the "ruler knuckle-slapping" days, instead the school is quite focused and has established a code of conduct which is directly related to the shared values of the parents and church.

This includes a discipline with dignity, respecting the space and property of others, and showing respect for any adult who is part of the school.

What makes the school a success is its higher level of parental involvement and their support of its academics. St. Charles School never backed away from its authority, its homework assignments, student community service programs or its required academics.

Father Walsh feels the teachers (all state board certified) do a great job of motivating the children and also know more about the children and their families, due to higher level teacher-parent involvement.

Over a period of years, he is seeing a disturbing trend, in which parents are letting children make decisions that should be made by parents. This may be in the form of an unhealthy snack vs. a healthy one, or choose a school that has a catalog of courses vs. one that has established academics. He can only encourage

REV. Paul Walsh the affable new pastor of St. Charles Church in Woburn.

"TLC for the Elderly"

Let's try it one more time

No thanks to a computer error, the paragraphs in last week's feature "Adult Day Care - TLC for the Elderly" were seriously out of order.

Because of this mistake we are publishing the story in its entirety again.

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

"The people who come virtually blossom," says Thea Gaudette, program director of Somerset Adult Day Health Services in Reading. "They have new self-confidence because they're with a social peer group and they look out for each other."

Cookies in the oven, music in the air, crafts, games, and soothing exercise are but part of the atmosphere of good fellowship which permeates the sparkling new facilities of the area's only adult day program based on a medical model.

The sunny, warm, cheery facility - characterized by quiet chatter and spontaneous laughter - embraces its clients from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m., Monday through Friday. It offers them a second home, an extended family of friends, almost all the benefits of nursing home care, and the security of their own beds at the end of each energizing day.

"There are people living in nursing homes who really don't need to be there - and wouldn't be if their families knew there is an alternative way to give them care," says Gaudette.

The day program is a godsend for families. In addition to support groups and counselors, it offers them peace of mind and a freedom they haven't known for a while. "It's not like having somebody come in to watch someone at home because if that person's sick and can't come, you have to take a day off from work," says Gaudette.

"It's one thing to find a babysitter for a young child, another to have a teenage girl come after school to take care of all the needs of an older person - who expects to order her around."

"Some families feel so overwhelmed by the 24-hours-a-day, seven days-a-week caretaking that they end up searching out a nursing home. If they knew that four or five days a week, they could have six or seven hours off to do shopping or spend with young children, it would recharge their batteries."

Open since mid-September, the "alternative" program at the Somerset Nursing Home serves adults in Reading, North Reading, Wakefield, Wilmington, Stoneham, and Lynnfield.

The new "health" model program surpasses the best aspects of its "social" counterpart. "The 'social' model is social," says Gaudette. "It's come, have a meal, play cards with friends. It keeps people busy."

"We have everything the social program has, plus the availability of emergency medical care."

"Here, there's always a nurse on duty. They can get medications and treatments. We have oxygen available. We have a place they can lie down if they're not feeling well or they're tired."

"If someone is on a diabetic or no-sodium diet, we see they stay on it. Any kind of therapeutic diet is maintained, where if they were home, they might just eat anything."

In the course of a day, they monitor blood pressures, check weights and keep participants moving. Physical, occupational and speech therapy are available - as well as a podiatrist, hairdresser and barber. "We run the gamut of anything people might do when they get together socially," says Gaudette. "We keep them involved in activities, both physical and social - we feel one is just as important as the other."

Somerset day participants cook or bake two or three times a week. "It's just as if they were in their own kitchen," says Gaudette. "We don't do the baking - they do. I think it's one of their favorite activities. We do morning news - we talk about the day's headlines and what it was like back in their time."

"We do a lot of reminiscence. Those whose short-term memories are not wonderfully intact can pull on the long-term memories that are still there."

The group at Somerset ranges "all across the board" from the physically disabled and mentally astute to the physically able with other problems. The oldest is 88; the youngest, 39. They come by private transportation, taxi or wheelchair van - from every area of the community. Some live at home with spouses, others with children. Some depend on meals-on-wheels and home health aids. Others come for the company and stimulation.

Sports Night at Bear Hill CC

A Major League sports night will be held at Bear Hill Golf Club on Saturday, February 10. There will be a dinner and awarding of door prizes with all proceeds going to the Jimmy Fund.

This will be hot-stove league type of dinner with panelists including Joe Costanza, who has been a stastician for NBC for many years. He has covered nine Super Bowls, 16 Rose Bowls and 17 American Football Conference championship games.

Also, Bill Crowley, former vice president and public relations director of the Boston Red Sox; Tim Horgan, award-winning sports columnist for the Boston Herald; Frank Malzone, scout for the Red Sox and former All Star third baseman; and Johnny Pesky, a Red Sox legend at shortstop who has been associated with the team for nearly 50 years.

Although the dinner has been sold out, two rare items will be auctioned off with proceeds going to the Jimmy Fund. One is a framed and matted photograph, measuring 20 inches by 24 inches, showing Ted Williams in full swing for opening day in 1946. The photograph has been autographed by Ted.

The second is a framed and matted photo, 14 inches by 20 inches, which actually includes two 8 x 10 photographs of Carl Yastrzemski. One shows Carl in the dugout at Fenway as a rookie in 1961. The facing photo shows Carl acknowledging the ovation during his last at bat at Fenway Park in October of 1983. Both photos have been autographed by Yaz.

The public is invited to bid on either or both of these photos. Bids may be written to: Baseball Photos, 123 High St., Stoneham, Mass. 02180 and should be submitted before February 1. Please do not send checks. The highest bidder will be notified on February 12, at which time the check for the Jimmy Fund will secure the photos.

Woodchips

ANTHONY MANCONI

Have you ever seen a comet on a cool summer night? Have you seen it flash across the sky trailing a brilliant tail of light? Then in a moment it's gone? Some people are like that comet. They perform ONE outstanding achievement then sit back and rest for a lifetime. I know many members of the Kiwanis, Elks, Rotary, etc., who without publicity, fanfare or horn-blowing consistently work towards the betterment of mankind. They are men and women who give freely of their time, talents and funds to the less fortunate among us. They believe and are dedicated to the proposition that, "Yes, we are our brother's keepers." Woodchips is proud of the charity work done by many organizations in the Middlesex East Area.

Groucho Marx was quoted as saying, "I wouldn't join any club, lodge or organization that would accept me as a member." Groucho may have said that just to be funny, but it is a fact that the Marx Brothers performed many, many times for charity. Many friends of mine take crash courses of the languages of the European countries they are about to visit. Folks, I've learned from experience that there are only three words to know that will get you by famously in almost every country in the world. They are, hello and thank you. Learn to say them so they are understood in the country you visit and don't worry about anything else. Bon Voyage.

Mario DiMino said that the words he likes to hear are when his dinner guest says to the waiter, "Please bring me the check." There are many people who will never fly when they can take a train to their destination. Maybe they share Millay's sentiments when he wrote, "My heart is warm with the friends I make, and better friends I'll not be knowing. Yet, there isn't a train I wouldn't take, no matter where it's going."

Incidentally, my Grand Uncle, Don O'Donnell, was an engineer on steam locomotives of the Boston and Maine Railroad. The family had a good natured nickname for him calling him "Choo Choo Danno." Ironically or comically, Dan's telephone number was 222-2222. My Aunt Nora would call him and when he answered the phone she would ask, "Is this, To To To - To To To To?" "Yes it is," he would reply, then add, "Is this the woman with a shape like the caboose on the end of a freight train?" I loved it when these two would trade "barbs" at a family party. It would prove once again to me that nobody has the wit and immediate repartee of those from the old sod, Ireland. Nobody!

General Omar Bradley said, "We have grasped the mystery of the Atom and rejected the Sermon on the Mount." A kiss on the hand is so continental but diamonds are a girl's best friend. That may be but as far as I'm concerned, one of my best friends is my dog, Rover. It is a beautiful Golden Retriever that loves me more than Kathy. It is my constant companion as I walk the beach at dawn as the Beachcomber. I'm retired now but when I was working I'd come home and Rover would come running towards me, jumping up and down with joy. Kathy, on the other hand, would welcome me with, "Oh, it's you again!"

When Angelo Quaganti was a foreman of a WPA Crew in the 1930's he complained to the supervisor that there weren't enough shovels for every man. "I'll see what I can do, the supervisor said, "Meanwhile, have those men without shovels lean on each other." I remember when I went to school. Those were the days when the school day would start with a prayer, then we would recite the Pledge of Allegiance, followed by the class singing "My Country 'Tis of Thee" and Bob Giguere would sing the next line, "Sweet land of Lipton Tea."

Ed Coffey asked me, "Woodchipper, what did you do with the scarecrow that I saw in your garden last summer?" "For crying out loud, Eddie. That wasn't any scarecrow, that was Kathy picking tomatoes." Jimmy

About the towns

By PHYLLIS NISSEN

WINCHESTER - For going above and beyond state and national goals, RN Sue Powers, Winchester Hospital's Community Health Educator, has won the American Cancer Society's PACE Setting Award.

The award recognizes the vast number of adults and youth reached through educational programs about cancer in schools, hospitals and companies.

Powers co-chairs the Minute-man Unit Education Committee.

BURLINGTON - To commemorate its 25th anniversary, the Burlington Historical Society is selling blue "cup plates" with a picture of the West School designed and pressed by the Parpoint Glass Company.

Cup plates are 3.5 inch colored or glass plates used in the 1800's. The plates are available for $10 from Evelyn Wing, the Lahey Clinic Gift Shop and the Sally Bates Quilt Shop.

READING - Some time next month, the court will decide the fate of the burned-out Main St. Cafe-Reading Diner.

Mike Cologna and Mike Mulligan, who leased the former diner from owner Steve Natisis, are asking that he restore the property to its renovated condition prior to a three-alarm fire last January 17th.

Reading Selectmen have renewed the cafe's liquor license for 1990.

WAKEFIELD - Members of Wakefield's newly formed Parking Task Force are looking for any and every way to solve the Fanikos' uncle was a tailor and also a Greek Scholar. Stephen Rappa brought a torn pair of pants to him. Uncle George the tailor asked, "Euripides?" "Yes," Stephen replied, "Eumenides?" John "Ed" Fogelberg appraised Woodchips as a column of chuckles and groans. I agree, Ed.

Some motorists follow this rule - red light, stop; yellow light, floor it; green light, proceed with caution. Folks, don't ever teach a member of your family to drive a car. It may turn out to be a nerve wracking experience, so leave the teaching to experts. The instructor told Kathy, "Stop on red, go on green and p-l-e-a-s-e slow down when I turn white."

Personality Winners: Fire Captain Richard Nash, Fire Chief Fred Shaw, Firefighters Jim Brady, William "Bud" Warnock and Steven Pepper, all of Reading; Charles Severance, Eunice McLaughlin, James Spencer and Floyd Crist, all of Woburn; Lawrence F. Rice, Richard Clark, Robbie Glover and Richard Teas, all of Burlington; Eileen Donaghey, Pam Giarrizzo and Charles and Jane Johnson, all of Winchester; Joe Oliver, Joseph Rosselli, Wayne Waruszyla and Conrad Gerhart, all of Wilmington; James Joyce, Katherine Campbell, Dorothy Anderson and Joe and Vera Crupi, all of Stoneham; Jason Brown, Mrs. Joseph McKeague, Jaime, Carey and Jeff Robillard and Joe and Connie Watt, all of Reading; Camille and Peter Michals, Kimberly Scott, Ed Sargent, Maureen McGurn and Suzie Johnson, all of Tewksbury; Wendy Ribidue, Carmine Mastrogianni, CPA, all of Lynnfield; Jimmy Beane, Robert and Larry Brennan and Connie Johnson of Honeycomb, all of Wakefield.

Woodchips congratulates the Honorable John W. Rabbitt as he starts his fourth term of office as Mayor of the City of Woburn. He was sworn in by the Honorable Francis P. Cullen, presiding justice of the Woburn District Court. What impressed me most was the presence of several grandchildren watching a Statesman (their Grandfather) take the oath of office. Good Luck, Mayor Rabbitt and may God Bless You.

Aloha, according to Don Blandry, is more than just an easy word for goodbye. It's gayer than a greeting and sadder than a sigh. Aunt Nora brought her banged up bomber to the car wash. She asked the attendant, "Can you make my car look better?" "Sorry, ma'am," he said, "We wash cars here, we don't iron them!" Bobby Belmonte, way over his head in debt, received this note from his long-time creditors: "Dear Sir, please pay something on your long overdue account. We've been extremely patient with you. In fact, we have done more for you than your mother did. We have carried you for 11 months!" It was mid-morning of a Sunday last summer when Bobby Burns stopped at a gas station in what looked like a sleepy hollow town in New Hampshire. Bobby remarked to the attendant, "Pretty quiet town isn't it?" "Seems like it," the man replied, "but just wait till church lets out. You'll think all hell broke loose!"

I thank all the lovely ladies at the Middlesex East Office in Reading for their wonderful fan letter. In it they wrote that I should stop picking on Kathy and Dennis. They also said they love the way my Aunt Nora tries to make life miserable for me. The Coup de Grace was when they said the jokes are even worse than last year's.

Super Star is Helen Morrison of Reading.

In Germany, Jack Frost appears as an old woman. When Old Mother Frost shakes her bed, snow begins to fall.

Bruce Webster really wanted to go to work after high school, but he realized that more education would be necessary if he wanted a good job. "I was interested in children's literature, in psychology, in a chance for an internship at Danvers, in a lot of things," Bruce says. "I decided Northern Essex was a good, inexpensive way to start since I didn't know exactly where I was going."

Because the Liberal Arts field offered courses in so many different areas, including those he liked, Bruce decided to get a general education foundation. He received his Associate Degree in Liberal Arts in 1975. "It didn't take long on the job to realize I wanted more education," Bruce says. "I worked during the day as Marketing Director for Central Supply and in inside sales for American Standard and went to Northeastern University nights. Bruce holds a Bachelor's Degree in Marketing from Northeastern.

Six years ago, Bruce started his own company, Metro Advertising, Inc. (home base in West Boxford) and is the company's president. "We specialize in advertising, marketing, and sales promotion using radio, TV and print media. Our field is industrial distribution marketing." Recently, Bruce opened Metro South, the company's Florida branch. He hopes to grow into the international wholesale distribution area.

"I have a nice feeling about Northern Essex," Bruce says. "It gave me a start when I had plenty of ideas but not one idea of how to put my ideas to work."

from S-1

Anyone over the age of 18 is eligible. The admission procedure includes an interview, formal application and physician's consent. The 18 clients may be self-paying or Medicaid-eligible.

"We thought our mother would be discriminated against by the others because she can't do everything she used to," says one participant's child, "but it's been just the opposite."

"It's amazing to see the relationships and group dynamics develop," says Gaudette. "Those who are mentally more astute draw things out of the others, pull them along, make them feel special. Our clients with Alzheimer's disease thrive under the praise of the others."

"When we do an activity, we maximize each person's ability - everybody gets a piece of the pie."

A multi-focused daily routine runs from morning coffee and conversation to mid-afternoon snack. "We do some readings of poetry or other issues in their lives. We talk about traditions revolving around holidays like Christmas or Chanukah, special memories and feelings," says Gaudette.

"We have very few things everyone is required to do because we want this to be something they all enjoy. The exercise program and special parties are the only things they must participate in."

Gentle exercises, focused on stretching, bending and moving, run about half an hour every morning. "We're not looking to build great aerobic capacity," she says. "We're just trying to keep joints from stiffening up, to keep them mobile."

Crafts or other organized activities follow; then lunch; then another optional organized activity; maybe some independent knitting; a nap or, so, whatever.

Between 3 p.m. and 4 p.m., when things are really winding down, for those who must, there's always a soap to watch.

Special programs, speakers and visitors liven up an already full day: bowling, horse races, games, movies, popcorn and every week, a general multi-option plan. "We try to hit a little of everything during the course of the week, hoping we'll hit something everybody will enjoy," says Gaudette. "If they don't, it just comes off our calendar and we don't do it again."

Together, Somerset day clients have written a cookbook, filled a charity basket, produced a newsletter. They've looked at the physical and psychological aspects of aging; studied hypothermia, medication, self-hypnosis, sleep, and depression; participated in a mini-course on stress. "The less control you have over your own life, the more you feel stress," says Gaudette. "And if there's any group that has less control of their lives, it's the elderly."

They write to young penpals, enjoy the company of Campfire kids, sing and play along with SEEM day care youngsters, look forward to visits from and discussions with Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational students.

"They laugh and hoot at each other's ideas," says Gaudette. "You really did that? You put mustard plasters on? You rubbed camphor on?" And when the teenagers express their points of view...

With students from Essex Agricultural School, Somerset clients are into gardening, flower-arranging, seedlings, cuttings, spring. "We're trying to take interests they had earlier in life and continue them here," she says. "So many people had their own gardens and potted plants, and when they talk about that type of thing, they just glow."

"We'd like to be able to give that back to them."

"As the social worker in the program, seeing families in a sort of crisis situation, I see how hard it is just to get some assistance or even a companion to alleviate some of the responsibility and stress on the primary caretaker," says Nancy Saetta, who works with families to explore the financial and physical options available to them. "It's hard to get reliable help."

Gaudette and Saetta feel that the more the community can serve the elderly - through adult day care, nursing home respite care and support from the individual caretaker's employers - and the longer a permanent placement in long-term care can be postponed, the happier the seniors will be - and the further the tax dollar will go.

"The average nursing home cost per day varies, based on the accommodations," says Saetta.

"Depending on the facility, it ranges from about $125 to $165," says Gaudette. "That's a far cry from a $35-a-day program."

"I've worked in nursing homes my whole life," she continues, "but I hate to see anyone go into one unless they absolutely have to."

"I've worked in nursing homes the last seven years," says Saetta, "and I've seen the trauma of the adjustment period."

"For people who have attended an adult day program, who have begun to be part of a community again, the adjustment is easier - because they haven't been sitting alone in their little apartment. They've had other people close by."

"People who have kept to themselves for years come into our program and become participants rather than observers, learn to interact again - and to belly laugh."

Golf moves in for the winter

For golfers, the only thing more frustrating than a hook or a slice is an idle three months without swinging a club.

The New England winter doesn't exactly endear itself to those interested in a mid-January round of 18 holes. Unless your job allows travel closer to the equator than Woburn each weekend, the only golf folks see around these parts is on TV.

What to do?

Come on inside, everyone. Welcome to indoor golf, a new phenomenon the folks at 4D Henshaw Street in Woburn hope will catch on.

Now in its fifth year, the indoor golf facility offers everything a normal golf course would - except a course.

A pro shop provides all golfing needs and a video center lets you watch the swings of Lee Trevino and Tom Watson.

"We do everything you do at a golf course," says Bob Carey with a grin. "We just don't have the golf course."

But what we do have is instruction, which is what Carey and the rest of the pros are emphasizing. "You don't become ball-bound in her," says Carey. "You become swing-bound."

By that Carey means indoor golf is probably the best way to work on your swing. Because the golfers hit off tees into large nets 10 feet away, concentration is not focused on where the ball goes, but how it gets there.

"When people take lessons outside they always worry about where the ball is going," notes Carey, a professional at the Winchester Country Club. "Inside they can't worry about it because they can only hit it so far. I think you benefit more from golf lessons inside."

Those lessons can either be with a group of friends or private. They may also be videotaped. A different pro teaches each day of the week - Jim Lane, John McLaughlin, Dan Gillis, Bob Carey, Eric Carlson and Patricia Jordan.

The prices for the sessions are moderate. Lessons, of course, are optional. Anyone can walk in at any time and hack away at a bucket of balls for three dollars. The facility will provide clubs at no charge.

There is also a range membership plan which varies in expense as the year goes on. You can pay a certain amount and have unlimited use of balls until the end of the season (the facility shuts down at the end of March), from February 2 to the end of the season the cost of unlimited balls would be a lesser amount. The price keeps declining as the three month season progresses.

"A lot of people join in the last month because they want to get in tune for the season," says Carey. "Some people stay in tune the whole time. But we see more people as the year goes on."

The golfing area itself is about 6,000 square feet. Golfer have 10 different tees from which they smack balls into nets 15-feet high. There is also a practice sand bunker to compliment the range.

Thus, it's pretty much the same concept as a driving range except that golfers tee up on high-quality astro-turf instead of rubber mats.

The facility is open Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. On Saturdays and Sundays the hours are 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

As for the future of indoor golf, Carey sees it doing nothing but expanding. He would like to see it become an all-year round thing.

"The response has been tremendous," he says. "I think we'll keep growing and growing."

Dust off those clubs. There's still a couple of months left in the season!

Poem

ATTITUDE

Step out of yourself
From the anguish and pain
Help someone else
To come in from the rain

If your heart's filled with sadness
And your day's full of woe
Make your own kind of sunshine
Wherever you go

Put a smile on your face
And a bounce in your walk
Take hope place to place
In the way that you talk

Leave echoes of laughter
With all that you meet
Keep a lilt in your voice
And no trace of defeat

View the start of each new day
As a gift from above
Then spend it by spreading
Much joy, peace and love!

WILMINGTON ADULT EDUCATION CLASSES

Evening classes begin Feb. 12, for the spring courses sponsored by the Wilmington community Education, a newly formed program growing from the roots of the Community Schools Inc.

The Wilmington community Education Program is under the directorship of Alan Chasse. This program offers a variety of courses which are available with excellent instruction. Last fall over 200 people registered for courses. The enrollments are expected to increase as recent trends indicate that adults want to go back to school for advancement or betterment reasons.

There are some new courses. You do not have to a Wilmington resident to participate in these courses. The courses are offered on Monday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. at Wilmington High School. Please check the Wilmington Community Education brochure for the complete details at your local library on January 29.

Mail-in registration will begin on Wednesday, January 31.

Walk-in registration will be Wednesday, February 7, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Wilmington High School Cafeteria. Telephone registration will be Thursday and Friday, February 8 and 9 at (508) 694-6041 from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Mr. Chasse is anticipating that the courses fill to capacity, which makes self-sustaining non-profit courses flourish.

SPOUSE SUPPORT GROUP BEGINS

The Family Services Center at Hanscom Air Force Base is organizing a support group for spouses of military people who are on remote overseas assignments.

The purpose of the group is to provide assistance to spouses in the Boston area during the period that the military husband or wife is away from home. Those with spouses who are frequently on temporary duty away from the base will also be invited to join.

Spouses interested in joining the support group should call the Hanscom public affairs office, (617) 377-5191, for information. Family Services Center officials have asked anyone knowing of separated spouses in the Boston area to pass their names to the Hanscom public affairs office by calling or writing to: ESD/PA, Hanscom AFB, 01731-5000.

HOMEBASED BUSINESS MEETING FOR WOMEN

The Homebased Business-women's Network, Inc., is a non-profit organization which provides informative meetings, guest speakers, and an opportunity to share ideas with women who have similar personal and professional goals.

Interested persons are invited to attend the group's next meeting on Friday, January 19, at 9 a.m. at the Commodore Restaurant,

MOVIE REVIEWS Rochelle Flynn

"Roger and Me"
"The Music Box"

"Roger & Me" Written, produced and directed by Michael Moore. Starring Moore, the residents of Flint, Michigan and General Motors Chairman Roger Smith. Rated R.

Filmmaker and muckraking journalist Michael Moore wanted to make a point. He thought it really lousy that his hometown of Flint, Michigan had gone to the dogs when General Motors closed all its factories there, only to reopen in Mexico where workers are paid only $.70 per hour, as opposed to the average 15 bucks an hour earned by their American counterparts.

Moore was especially angry that GM did this during a time when the company was doing just fine. GM was not in financial trouble, the company, under the fearless leadership of Chairman Roger Smith, just wanted to use the money to take over other companies. It was the people of Flint who were in trouble. So Moore did what he thought best: He made a movie.

Moore spent about three years of his life, and every cent he had, to dog Roger Smith around the country, trying to get the GM fat-cat to answer a few questions, maybe even take a little responsibility for the 30,000 workers who lost their jobs because of the factory closings. Smith wouldn't talk, in fact, came off as quite pompous the few times Moore tried to get near him, which wasn't often. So Moore wandered around Flint, showing us what had happened to his hometown since the factories closed.

Instead of relying on bread lines and interviews with welfare workers, Moore followed around Flint's sheriff as he evicted people, most of whom, we assume, had worked at the GM factories. The sheriff took the job because he had hated working at the factory himself - and knew business would be good as a sheriff once the lay-offs began.

There is a lot of stark truth in Moore's movie, just as there is a lot of manipulation. But there is also much humor. Moore made us think that the factories were shut down at the same time, not true, it actually took years. He also led us to believe that the founding fathers of Flint were total morons who tried to recoup the city's losses by building Autoworld, the equivalent of Exxon World in Alaska. In reality, some of the cities projects, albeit silly ones, were on the boards before the factories were boarded up.

Even so, his point is well taken. The city never was able to do anything more useful than ask Michigan natives Pat Boone and Anita Bryant to come to town and help boost spirits by giving silly advice and singing a few ditties. His point is underscored magnificently when he catches Smith on camera on Christmas Eve quoting Dickens, cutting away from the speech with the pathetic images of families being evicted that same night. There is no indication that Roger Smith directly caused those people to lose their homes, but there were plenty like them who did because of his callousness and greed.

Moore's humor is wry and off-beat, and well dispersed throughout the film. Though the subject matter may be depressing, the film itself is not. It's actually quite amusing, as Moore is doing something most people never get a chance to, he's thumbing his nose at the establishment and making us laugh at the same time. I did not find his slight fudging of the facts intrusive. After all, he gave Smith three years to talk to him, the guy just wouldn't bother. But if he changes his mind, Warner Brothers, who distributed this independent flick, is reserving one seat in every theatre across the country for Smith, should he decide to see the film.

"The Music Box" Starring Jessica Lange, Armin Mueller-Stahl, Frederic Forrest. Directed by Costa-Gavras. Produced by Irwin Winkler. Written by Joe Eszterhas. Rated PG-13.

The theme is social injustice and moral responsibility. Who could expect anything less from Costa-Gavras, a director who always gives us something to think about?

Gavras, who won international acclaim in the late Sixties with "Z," has never provided his audiences with entertainment strictly for its own sake. Sometimes his politically aware films work, such as 1982's "Missing," and sometimes they are preachy and implausible, such as last year's film about racism, "Betrayed." This time out, the director raised a lot of questions about the known harboring of Nazi war criminals in this country, while successfully wrapping this theme around an enthralling story.

Jessica Lange is Ann Talbot, the ever-so-average lawyer who finds herself in the unenviable position of having to defend her father, a retiree now accused of war crimes committed 50 years earlier.

Lange has lost herself in the part of Anne, a frumpy woman with dull brown hair and too many crucifixes hanging around her neck. At first she is self-righteously sure that the accusations against her old man are nothing less than clerical errors, until it slowly dawns on her that maybe Ann doesn't know her father as well as she had thought. As the trial continues, the actress becomes a fraught bundle of tension, the very set of her jaw giving away her inability to accept a situation she deems impossible. Matching Lange's slow unraveling is Armin Mueller-Stahl as Mike Laszlo, the Hungarian-born blue collar worker who insists upon his innocence in the face of witnesses who steadfastly point him out as a cold-blooded killer. As the trial progresses, Mueller-Stahl's character never loses his cool. If anything, he becomes more self-possessed, more rigid and untouched by the rampaging emotions around him.

Gavras slowly takes you in with his storytelling. There isn't a lot of action in Joe Eszterhas' intelligent script. If anything, its leisurely pace may be too slow for some tastes. Much of the film is set in a courtroom, and there just isn't much action in a courtroom. The focus here is on dialogue - the testimony of witnesses brought in against a retired steelworker who seems a model of the American dream. After all, he's a widower who raised his kids, one a Vietnam vet, the other a successful lawyer who married into a prosperous, much respected family.

Gavras relies on words and settings to evoke the horrors of Nazism. Aged witnesses sitting in a small, closed courtroom deliberately spilling their pain, all the while incriminating another old man who may not have had anything to do with their sorrows. When Gavras takes the story to Budapest, the city where these atrocities were committed, the very image of the Danube brings the question of responsibility alive for Ann, who until that point had felt herself removed from the reality of the war.

There are lots of little stories within the main frame. This is about family as much as it is about letting memory soften jagged edges. There is a little boy (Lukas Haas) who adores his dotting grandfather. There is a disheveled and unfocused son who is an embarrassment to a father who gloats over his daughter, the lawyer. Another grandfather is as guilty of racism and questionable politics as Mike Laszlo, yet he is a successful and respected attorney whose tainted background is considered proof of his power.

We never really know until the end if Laszlo is guilty. Nor do we know how his guilt or innocence will affect the family until an emotional floodgate breaks in Anne, the dispassionate lawyer who finds herself reevaluating her whole life, even if she doesn't want to. And finally, tearfully, Gavras tells us that maybe we can't let memories fade just because time lessens reality and soothes pain.

School Notes

by phyllis nissen

--Retired just last year, Winchester science teacher, performer and drama coach Wally Gagel is back in school as the director of this year's Winchester High spring musical.

Gagel is looking for parent volunteers to help with "Guys and Dolls." Openings exist in areas like "costuming, publicity, producing, playbill, theater manager, social chairman, refreshments, business manager" - and more.

--Stoneham and Burlington are two of five Eastern Mass. school systems which will use Continental Cable's "Cable in the Classroom."

Continental will provide commercial-free programming, classroom guides and other resources so that school administrators can integrate cable programming into class lessons. Local school personnel - such as Burlington's Director of Multi-Media Services Ernie DeMartinis and Stoneham's Supervisor of Library-Media Services Bob Hogan - will fine-tune the material for each community.

The other school systems taking advantage of this free pilot program are Beverly, Marblehead and Needham.

--Lynnfield's Early Childhood Education Project recently sponsored a program for parents and three-to-six-year-olds on "emergent literacy" - how a child goes from listening to speaking, scribbling to writing, seeing the world to responding to it on paper.

Lynnfield Reading and Language Arts Specialist Pam Buchek led the discussion; and Early Childhood Education Project Coordinator Barbara Nickerson planned the afternoon.

--North Reading Bachelor School sixth grade teacher Ed Biggs recently received a Mass. Department of Education Educational Technology Grant for $1,560.

The grant will be used for teacher workshops on Logowriter, a computer program.

--Directed by Patti Harris and assisted by sixth grade teachers, Woburn's Joyce Middle School students - sixth graders, in particular - decorated 265 spoons in December, donating them, in the spirit of the season, to Project Bread - via Faneuil Hall Marketplace and area Filene's Basements.

--Ever on the watch for ways to respond to community needs, the Reading League of Women Voters is conducting an extended-day kindergarten community survey.

The League cites the following reasons for going from the current 2.5 hour kindergarten program to the extended day which has been in place in some communities for more than a decade: incorporating a developmentally appropriate curriculum that allows time for imaginative play; relieving stress on children and teachers due to time constraints; and accommodating the needs of dual-income families.

Meanwhile, Reading is going through the throes of a Proposition 2.5 override. "Due to the town's current fiscal crisis, we acknowledge that this questionnaire may seem untimely," reads the form.

"It is still important to examine this type of academic enrichment, because an excellent educational system is paramount to a desirable community."

Calendar of Events

Route 1A, (45 Enon St.) Beverly. This will be the Annual Breakfast Meeting at which time ladies will be given an opportunity to discuss businesses in detail with each other. Anyone who would like to attend, please RSVP to Barbara Warden, 5 Merrimack St., Merrimack, 10860.

Admission will be $11 for members and $13 for non-members (cost of breakfast).

SINGLE FRIENDS VERY ACTIVE

Single Friends is a thriving new low-key group of single men and women, chiefly late thirties to late forties, who enjoy new friendships and varied social activities.

Begun by a Reading resident and single parent, the group looks forward to welcoming new members. Upcoming events include attending "Party of One," a hilarious musical about the single life at Theatre Lobby in Boston's North End on Friday, January 26 at 7 p.m., enjoying a diverse menu at Sunday brunch at Barrett's on Boston Harbor on February 11, Giggle's comedy Club at the Prince Restaurant in Saugus on Saturday, February 17 and figuring out "whodunnit" at Shear Madness, the comic murder-mystery at the Charles Playhouse in Boston on Tuesday, March 6.

For further information regarding Single Friends, please contact Janet at (617) 944-4215.

V A. Questions

Q - I just got married. Does my wife automatically become the beneficiary of my VA insurance policy?

A - No. You must notify the VA that you wish to make a change and provide complete identification of the new beneficiary.

Q - Can the interest rate on a VA home loan be changed?

A - The prevailing interest rate at the time the loan is made, established by the Government and set forth in the mortgage note, is a fixed non-adjustable rate mortgage which remains the same for the life of the loan. However, to take advantage of a lower interest rate, refinancing of an existing loan could be an option.

EARTHTUNES RETURNS TO WAKEFIELD

The Linden Tree Coffeehouse and the Wakefield Recycling Committee announce a special afternoon family concert of Earthtunes with Barbara Herson on Sunday, January 28 at 3 p.m.

Earthtunes, in a very special way, is music with a message. Families will participate in songs about the earth, pollution, recycling and conservation through singing, clapping, sign language, puppets, and rhythm instruments. Ms. Herson will accompany them on guitar and mountain dulcimer, a truly dynamic performer.

Barbara Herson developed Earthtunes in 1979 as a way to share her commitment to both environmental concerns and musical expression. Earthtunes has been presented in schools, fairs, camps, libraries, conferences, and on local cable TV shows throughout Massachusetts.

In Wakefield, the Wakefield Recycling Committee sponsored Earthtunes' one week elementary school workshops and concerts to each elementary school over the past few years. All would agree that the music is catchy and fun. Ms. Herson is hoping to see many of these school friends at the Linden Tree Coffeehouse. School friends may bring their instruments made from recycled materials to the concert.

This is the second annual family concert at the Linden Tree Coffeehouse. Admission is $2.50 per person. The coffeehouse is located in the social hall of the Unitarian-Universalist Church, 326 Main St., Wakefield, across from the Wakefield Post Office. For more information, call Paul Harty (245-3053) evenings or Liz Freeman (246-2836).

FREE SERIES OF FEATURE FILMS

In observance of Black History Month, four major contemporary films will be shown in February at Middlesex Community College. Under the sponsorship of the Student Activities Office and the Campus Events Committee, the free screenings of Cry Freedom, The Color Purple, Mississippi Burning and Lean on Me will be open to students and the general public at the college campuses in Burlington (Terrace Hall Avenue) and Lowell, 650 Suffolk Street. Each of the films deals with aspects of racism from various viewpoints, provoking strong audience reactions. All were critically acclaimed when released as commercial features.

Cry Freedom, set in South Africa, is based on the real-life personal and political relationship between Donald Woods, a white journalist, and the black anti-apartheid activist Stephen Biko, who was jailed and murdered for his outspoken beliefs. Screening times: Burlington Campus Auditorium, Thursday, February 8, 10 a.m.; Lowell Campus, Powerhouse Loft Area, Friday, February 9, 10 a.m.

The Color Purple is Steven Spielberg's adaptation of the Pulitzer Prize winning novel by Alice Walker about a strong and memorable black woman's struggle for more than mere survival. The film was nominated for eleven Academy Awards, including Whoopi Goldberg as Best Actress. Screening times: Burlington Campus Auditorium, Monday February 12, noon; Lowell Campus, Powerhouse Loft Area, Tuesday, February 13, 11 a.m.

Mississippi Burning is a fictionalized account of an actual 1964 incident in which three civil rights workers, two white and one black, were brutally murdered. Gene Hackman and Willem Dafoe portray two FBI agents involved in the case. Screening times: Burlington Campus Auditorium, Thursday, February 22, 10 a.m.; Lowell Campus, Powerhouse Loft Area, Friday, February 23, 10 a.m.

Lean on Me stars Morgan Freeman as high school principal Joe Clark, the controversial head of a New Jersey high school whose strict yet compassionate crackdown on school discipline resulted in improved academic achievement among his students. Screening times: Burlington Campus Auditorium, Wednesday, February 28, 10:30 a.m.; Lowell Campus Powerhouse Loft Area, Thursday, March 1, 11 a.m.

For further information, contact Student Activities at (617) 272-7342, Ext. 3027, or (508) 937-5454, Ext. 6661.

CANTATA SINGERS TO PERFORM ST. JOHN PASSION

The Cantata Singers & Ensemble, under the direction of David Hoose, will give the second performance of its 25th anniversary season on Friday, January 26, 8 p.m., at Jordan Hall at New England Conservatory. The all-star roster of soloists includes Frank Kelley as the Evangelist; Sanford Sylvan as Jesus; Donald Wilkinson as Pilate; and soprano Jayne West, alto Gloria Raymond, tenor Rockland Osgood, and bass David Arnold as the soloists in the arias. The eloquent gambist Laurence Dreyfus also will be featured.

Music Director David Hoose has programmed an anniversary season that represents many aspects of the Cantata Singers' distinguished history. The major works of Bach have been cornerstones in the group's past. This performance of St. John Passion - David Hoose's first - reunites the Cantata Singers & Ensemble with memorable soloists from the group's past. Greater Boston audiences will recall the stunning performances of Frank Kelley and Sanford Sylvan as the Evangelist and Jesus in the Cantata Singers' April 1987 St. Matthew Passion.

Tickets are $25, $20, $15, $11 and $6. ($2 discount students and senior citizens), and can be purchased at Jordan Hall Box Office (617-536-2412), Bostix, Ticketron, Out of Town Tickets, or through the Cantata Singers (617-267-6502).

CHORAL SOCIETY PERFORMS MESSIAH

The Andover Choral Society will perform George Frederick Handel's Messiah on Sunday January 28, at 3 p.m. at the Collegiate Chapel - Merrimack College.

The proceeds will benefit Greater Lawrence Habitat for Humanity, an organization dedicated to the elimination of sub-standard housing in greater Lawrence. George Redman, Music Director, will conduct the chorus, orchestra, and soloists Lisa Wolff - Soprano, Deborah Schmale - Alto, Allen Combs - Tenor and Don Wilkinson - Bass.

Tickets for adults are $10. Children under 12 are free. Advance purchases can be made at "The Mail Room" in Andover (508) 470-2001, or Online Computer in Salem, N.H. (603)

894-6314. Tickets will be available at the door.

The Andover Choral Society is a community chorus dedicated to performing the highest quality choral performances. Singers come from throughout greater Lawrence and southern New Hampshire. New singers or contributors are always welcome and may call (508) 470-3430 for further information.

FREE CONCERTS IN MALDEN

The Malden Public Library's Free Sunday Concert Series presents Charles Sullivan, violin, and Ruth Sullivan, piano, in recital on Sunday, January 28 at 2:30 p.m. The program will include music by Beethoven, Paganini, Debussy, Des Planes and others.

Admission is free, refreshments will be served. The public is requested to use the Park Street entrance.

KATHLEEN TURNER IS IN "CAT ON A HOT TIN ROOF"

An American classic: Tennessee Williams' "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," starring a classic American actress, Kathleen Turner, will play a three week engagement at Boston's Shubert Theatre. Performances begin Tuesday, February 6, with press night set for Thursday, February 8 at 7 p.m., and run through Sunday, February 25. The three-week engagement is part of a four-city tour prior to opening on Broadway on March 14. Tickets will go on sale at the Shubert Theatre box office, through TeleCharge and all Ticketron outlets on Monday, January 15 at 12 noon.

Kathleen Turner stars as Maggie, Charles Durning as Big Daddy, Polly Holliday as Big Mama and Daniel Hugh Kelly as Brick in the classic Williams' play about smoldering sexual desire, power and a family's fight for the inheritance of a southern plantation.

Performances for "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" are Tuesday through Saturday evenings at 8 p.m. (except press night, Thursday, February 8 at 7 p.m.); matinees on Wednesdays and Saturdays at 2 p.m.; and Sunday matinees at 3 p.m. Tickets are now on sale at the Shubert Theatre box office, 265 Tremont St., Boston, 02116, at all Ticketron outlets, and through TeleCharge at (800) 233-3123.
